NEW YORK DEMOCRATS DEMAND LARGER SEGMENT OF PASTRY

Will Make That a Condition of Fusion With Republicans.

WISH TO NAME MAYOR

Possible Refusal of Seth Low to Be a Candidate Complicates the Situation.

TAMMANY NEEDS STRONG MAN

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Aug. 16.—The independent Democrats of New York are crying for their piece of pie. They want more of the fusion spoils, and covert threats of withdrawing from the alliance with the Republicans are made in the event that they do not get what they consider their share. They contend that a Democrat should be nominated for mayor of Greater New York to succeed Seth Low, who is most prominently mentioned as the candidate this fall. But Mr. Low has not yet announced himself as a candidate, and when he returns from his vacation may decide that he does not want the office again. In that event the struggle between the Republican and the independent Democratic branches of the fusion forces for first place on the ticket will be a hot one.

Efforts have been made for some time to have the independent Democrats go over to Tammany, thus unifying the Democratic strength of the city; but this has not been successful and it is not likely to be accomplished. The independents do not want to join with Tammany for the reason that if they do and a Democratic mayor is elected the independents will be but the tail of the Democratic kite and will not get recognition from Tammany except in such small quantities as the big leaders see fit to hand out to them. There is nothing in a combination for the independents, and consequently they prefer to hitch up with the Republicans in a fusion movement where they can demand substantial recognition in the distribution of the appointments under the municipal government.

The Democratic Argument.

The grounds upon which the independent Democrats base their claim to the candidate for mayor is that there are many Democrats in the city who will vote for a fusion candidate if they can do so without giving strength to the Republican ticket in a year just preceding the presidential election. They fear that if a Republican candidate for mayor is named he will poll such a large vote as to make things very easy for Roosevelt next year and also influence the election of a governor.

William H. Russell, commissioner of accounts, who is one of the leaders of the independent Democrats in declaring for an independent Democrat for mayor on the fusion ticket this fall, said:

"I have no thought of joining any movement that means a return to the Tammany camp. I believe that the present city government is the best that New York has had in many years, but there are some reasons why Mayor Low should not be renominated.

"There are in New York thousands of Democrats who want to see New York remain under a government that will not be influenced by the same forces that governed the administration of Mayor Van Wyck, but, on the other hand, they do not want to lend strength to their political enemies on the eve of an important national and state battle. There are Democrats in New York who would vote for a Democrat if nominated by the fusion forces and who will not vote for a Republican.

The Tammany Candidate.

"I do not regard it as a foregone conclusion that Mayor Low will be renominated, or that he will consent to another nomination. Why not nominate a man from Low's official family?

"All of this is merely tentative. I make no prediction, but I do say that much remains to be done before a candidate is agreed upon for mayor. I believe that the Republicans will see the light and that they will use reason. They will not drive from their support the thousands of Democrats who are not willing, unless compelled to do so, to join with Tammany hall."

Tammany hall is now casting about for a strong candidate for mayor, and on Tuesday there will be a conference between Grand Sachem Charles F. Murphy and other Tammany leaders, at which they will endeavor to decide upon a candidate. At present Bird S. Coler, who got such a big vote in Greater New York for governor last fall, seems to be the most likely man. His vote-getting ability was demonstrated last year, and Tammany appreciates that it will require an extraordinary candidate to make a showing this fall. Edward M. Shephard, who was defeated by Mayor Low, paid the latter a tribute yesterday when he said:

"Mayor Low will make a very strong candidate. His personal magnetism in a campaign is remarkable. The Democratic candidate will have to develop remarkable qualities as a vote-getter to defeat him."

NEBRASKA REPUBLICANS WILL INDORSE ROOSEVELT

LINCOLN, NEB., Aug. 16.—The action taken by the last of the Republican county conventions prior to the state convention in Lincoln makes it practically certain that J. B. Barnes of Norfolk, present court commissioner, will be nominated for associate justice of the state supreme court by acclamation. There is a unanimous demand for indorsement of the administration of President Roosevelt and the resolutions are expected to declare for his renomination in 1904.

OSBALDESTEN IN NEW YORK

Is Making Himself at Home at 7, West Sixty-Third Street.

HE SENDS MORE MAIL

Enclosed Scurrilous Pamphlets in Which He Attacks a Dead Pittsburgh Physician.

MRS. LUGAS MAKES STATEMENT

"Prof." Edwin T. Osbaldesten has been located. On Friday he was seen walking about a house in New York in his shirt sleeves, apparently very much at home, nothing about his actions indicating that he had been sending blood-curdling threats by mail to Mrs. Frank Lugas of No. 6319 Broad street, East End, whom the professor claims as his wife. He is now said to have a wife in New York.

Osbaldesten's pen is still busy, however, for The Gazette yesterday received through the mail, presumably from him, two printed pamphlets and some pictures, one of himself, the other of Mrs. Lugas and her daughter, her mother, sister and brother, and Osbaldesten himself. The pamphlets are printed in German and contain alleged episodes in the life of Mrs. Lugas before she married. The most startling statement consists in a sensational narrative of alleged happenings concerning Dr. W. H. Daly of Shadyside, who was found dead from a pistol wound in the bathroom in his home nearly three years ago, and whose death was ascribed by the coroner's jury to suicide.

To Justify Homicide.

The books were apparently written for the purpose of justifying Osbaldesten in the subsequent killing of a man named Wirth, a crime for which he was tried in Germany and of which he was acquitted on the ground of insanity, for they contain the most libelous statements, attacking the character of the present Mrs. Lugas, implicating prominent persons in New York in alleged misdoings, and altogether containing a most wonderful rambling farrago of sensational charges.

Mrs. Lugas, or Mrs. L. W. Day, as she was formerly known, the name being a sort of trademark in her business of a massage operator and manufacturer of lotions for the complexion, was connected with Osbaldesten as his assistant in London, New York and Pittsburgh. She returned to her mother's home in Germany, was followed there by Osbaldesten and became engaged, she says, to Wirth, who was killed by Osbaldesten. Immediately after his trial for the murder of Wirth she returned to Pittsburgh and married Frank Lugas. Osbaldesten was turned loose in Germany, and as soon as he landed in New York, a few weeks ago, he began to send letters to Mrs. Lugas, one of them containing a portion of the clothes worn by Wirth and pierced by the bullet that ended his life.

Two Decoy Letters Sent.

Last night Frank Lugas told how he had traced Osbaldesten to No. 7 West Sixty-third street, New York. In the threatening letters which he has been inditing Osbaldesten told Mrs. Lugas that if she wished to write to him she could address him care of the general delivery, general postoffice, New York. After communicating with a detective in New York Lugas sent two letters to Osbaldesten, one warning Osbaldesten to cease his threats, and the other being a registered letter. The detective kept watch at the general delivery window in New York on Friday morning. Osbaldesten approached the window and got one letter, declining to receive and receipt for the registered one. The detective followed him to No. 7 West Sixty-third street and later saw him walking about the house in his shirt sleeves.

Lugas says that before Osbaldesten left Germany he notified Mrs. Lugas that he was going to New York to join his wife, in face of the fact that he insists he was married to Mrs. Lugas eight years ago, which she as strenuously denies.

BRIDGES WILL BE ABANDONED

Startling Effect of the Order to Have Them Raised.

Companies Will Carry the Matter Into the Supreme Court of the United States.

RAILROADS WILL ALSO FIGHT

"If the secretary of war is unwise enough to order the bridges across the Allegheny river raised the matter will be taken at once to the supreme court, which will be a very good place to settle this one-sided question."

This statement was made last night by an official of the Sixth Street Bridge Company, who said that he expressed as well the views of the officials of the other Allegheny bridge companies, the Pennsylvania lines west and the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. He was emphatic in declaring that the United States engineers have tampered long enough with the question and without having any conception of what will befall the cities of Pittsburgh and Allegheny and the property owners at the land piers of the bridges. The financial condition of most of the Allegheny bridge companies is

LADIES IN THE PARTY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 16.—With the North Atlantic fleet anchored off Oyster Bay, this has been almost a fete day on the bay and sound. Hundreds of pleasure craft have been hovering about the fleet throughout the day.

Official formalities were begun at 9 o'clock this morning, when Rear Admiral Barker, accompanied by Capt. Hemphill of the Kearsarge and Flag Lieut. Eberle, went in a barge to the Dolphin to pay his respects to Secretary of the Navy Moody. An hour later Secretary Moody, accompanied by former Secretary W. C. Chandler, returned the visit, being received on board the Kearsarge with special honors. They remained to attend divine service.

When Admiral Barker was informed that the president also would attend the service, orders were issued for all officers to appear in special full dress. Shortly before 11 President Roosevelt arrived near the Kearsarge in the naval yacht Sylph. Flag Lieutenant Eberle put off in the steam barge to conduct him aboard. The president, as he came over the side, was received with honors due to the president of the United States.

Services on the Gun Deck.

A few minutes later a launch from the Sylph conveyed to the Kearsarge a party including Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Alice Roosevelt, Mrs. Emlen Roosevelt, Miss Christine Roosevelt, Captain Williard H. Brownson, superintendent of the naval academy, and the Roosevelt children. The service was conducted by Chaplain Isaacs of the Kearsarge on the after part of the covered gun deck. The president and his party occupied seats immediately behind the chaplain, who in conducting the service faced the enlisted men. The ship's

TURKEY BUYS 32 BATTERIES

Abdul Hamid is Preparing to Repel Invaders.

BLOODY WAR GOES ON

One Hundred Insurgents Are Slain in Fighting in the Vicinity of Peeriepe.

PORTE MAKES MORE DENIALS

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Constantinople, Aug. 16.—The Ottoman government has concluded negotiations with the Krupp works for the supply of 32 batteries of quick field artillery, each consisting of six guns.

Officials here affect ignorance of the news that Russia is sending a squadron to Turkish waters. They say that two divisions of the Russian Black sea fleet, which recently assembled for the usual autumn maneuvers, left Batoum three days ago, and some of the vessels will probably visit ports on the Turkish Black sea littoral, as was the case last year, but the movement has no significance and they scout the idea of a Russian naval demonstration.

Official reports assert that the insurgents, when they occupied the town of Krushevo, massacred all the Turkish functionaries. The recapture of the town was effected by three Turkish columns, operating from different points. The bombardment by the Turkish artillery exploded a number of dynamite mines behind the rebel intrenchments, causing considerable damage. The insurgents retired to the mountains, where the fighting continues.

A large number of insurgents took refuge in the church of the town and the Turkish military commandant asked Constantinople for permission to bombard the church. In reply he was instructed not to bombard it, but to accept the surrender of the insurgents. Negotiations to this end are now proceeding.

In the fighting around Peeriepe 100 insurgents were killed, and according to official information the inhabitants of 100 Bulgarian villages have surrendered their arms and have been pardoned. A dozen villages in the neighborhood of Peeriepe have been occupied by troops. The porte denies the report emanating from Sofia that it has armed 5,000 Mussulmen in the vilayet of Uskub.

A military train was slightly damaged last night near Veleses, between Selencko and Kuprili, on the Uskub-Salonica line. One soldier was killed and several others wounded. Two bags of dynamite were also found attached to the metals on the Vardar railway bridge near Kuprili.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 16.—The Russian press does not lay emphasis on the dispatch of a division of the Russian Black sea fleet to Turkish waters, merely repeating the official statement without comment. The Novoe Vremya, in an outspoken editorial, says:

"Bitter experience has shown the uselessness and disadvantage of all concerted measures. Now, since the murder of M. Rostkowski does not concern Europe, we are proceeding without any concert, and therefore we can more confidently predict complete satisfaction for our demands from Turkey."

MANY WERE WOUNDED IN LABOR RIOT

Strikers Fire Upon Non-Union Machinists at Wheeling.

BATTLED FOR HOURS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 16.—A clash between labor factions in this city occurred this morning between the striking machinists and about 25 non-union men, who took their places in the Riverside plant of the United States Steel Corporation. Many persons were wounded.

The battle was initiated Saturday night, but at that time demonstration had not attained alarming stage and despite the fact that over 1,000 shots were fired in the clash there were no fatalities.

A well-directed shot wounded one of the strikers, and he was carried to a hospital. Clay Hoover, a spectator, was also shot in the left knee, but not seriously. A number of other people who were in the building with the non-unionists received wounds which were dressed by physicians.

The rioting continued until 2 o'clock this morning. The police were powerless to interfere and reinforcements were requested. About 300 unionists participated in the riot and a fresh outbreak is feared at any moment.

The machinists have been out on strike for several weeks. The corporation imported about 25 men to take the places of the strikers. The men have been assailed from time to time, but the situation has not reached an alarming stage heretofore. The strikers congregated about the boarding houses of the non-unionists last night fully armed and began an attack upon the places. The houses were heavily barricaded and many volleys were fired into the structures.

At 12 o'clock tonight the strikers who are lying in the hills fired upon Peter Sitalek, who was passing that point. He was seriously wounded. The strikers mistook him for a spy.

CALVERT WILL NOT BE NAMED

He Has Decided to Decline the Fusion Shrievalty Nomination.

HUNTING A VETERAN

Thomas S. Bigelow Wants One For His Ticket and May Accept Capt. J. D. Walker.

NEW JOB FOR W. J. BRENNEN

Harry S. Calvert will not be the Citizens candidate for sheriff. He will today formally decline to accept a fusion nomination. Thomas S. Bigelow is now credited with hunting an old soldier for the place in the hope of appeasing the wrath of the veterans who have been badly treated by the city administration.

Bigelow is starting in a little late to cater to the old soldier. When Mayor William B. Hays came into office veterans of the civil war were, with a few exceptions, turned out of office. Their places were not even given to old soldiers, but in numerous cases young Democrats were appointed. No attention was paid to the laws that are supposed to protect the warriors who hold public positions. There is pending now in the local courts a case against Mayor Hays for his violation of this act of assembly. It will probably be tried at the September term and as that is in close proximity to the election, Bigelow figures that some bait has to be thrown out for the soldier vote.

Where Republicans Stand.

It has always been the intention of the Republicans to name an old soldier for one of the three prominent offices to be filled this fall. The general opinion is that the shrievalty should be turned over to the veterans. The old soldiers have an organization and it is the intention to allow it to pick the candidate. There is much talk of the selection of Andrew S. Miller of Bellevue. He is a prominent member of the Allegheny County Bar association. Daniel Ashworth is also mentioned, as was Capt. John A. Fairman of Allegheny, but he has declined to consider the matter.

Director J. W. Clark of the department of charities is credited with promoting the boom of Alderman James D. Walker of the Twentieth ward as the Citizens candidate for sheriff. Walker is an old soldier. He has been prominent in the Citizens movement and is the present chairman of the Fifth legislative district organization. There is also some consideration being given to the candidacy of John C. Brown, chief clerk of the sheriff's office. He is not an old soldier. Ira T. Williams of Bellevue has been getting the sentiment of the Citizens county committee on his own candidacy.

Will Meet Today.

The slatemakers of the Citizens machine are to meet today. The declination of Calvert will then be received and it is probable that a man will be slated for sheriff. Murry A. Verner is supposed to have a candidate under cover for the place.

Commissioner James A. Clark, who has the naming of the Democratic fusion committee, is to come home this morning from Atlantic City. George S. Fleming is also due at the same time. The two will then meet with W. J. Brennen and slate a candidate for poor director. The joint fusion conference is to be held tomorrow, when Bigelow hopes to name his ticket.

Friends of W. J. Brennen are predicting that in the event of the success of the fusion ticket he will be the attorney for the sheriff. The place pays well.

Among those lawyers being mentioned for suitable timber for district attorney on the Republican ticket is Maj. Robert E. Stewart of Braddock. His name has been heard quite frequently, but there has never been any intimation from Maj. Stewart of his intentions.

LAW'S DELAY IS BLAMED FOR THE FREQUENCY OF LYNCHING

Brewer Says Technical Rules Interfere With Justice.

ASSURANCE WANTED

Mobs Will Cease When People Are Convinced Punishment Will Be Swift.

DANGER LIES IN APPEALS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Aug. 16.—Associate Justice David J. Brewer of the supreme court of the United States has contributed to Leslie's Weekly an article on the crime of lynching, in the course of which he says:

"Our government recently forwarded to Russia a petition in respect to alleged atrocities committed upon the Jews. That government, as might have been expected, unwilling to have its internal affairs a matter of consideration by other governments, declined to receive the petition. If, instead of so doing it had replied that it would put a stop to all such atrocities when this government put a stop to lynchings, what could we have said?

"It is well to look the matter fairly in the face. Many good men join in these uprisings, horrified at the atrocity of the crime and eager for swift and summary punishment. Of course, they violate the law themselves, but rely on the public sentiment behind them for escape from punishment. Many of these lynchings are accompanied by the horrible barbarities of savage torture, and all that can be said in palliation is the atrocity of the offense which led up to them.

No Longer Sectional.

"For a time they were confined largely to the south, but that section of the country no longer has a monopoly. The chief offense which causes these lynchings has been the rape of white women by colored men. No words can be found too strong to describe the atrocity of such a crime. It is no wonder that the community is excited. Men would disgrace their manhood if they were not. And if a few lynchings had put a stop to the offense, society might have condoned such breaches of its law; but the fact is, if we may credit the reports, the crime, instead of diminishing, is on the increase.

"The black beast (for only a beast would be guilty of such an offense) seems to be not deterred thereby. More than that, as might be expected, lynching for such atrocious crimes is no longer confined to them, but is being resorted to for other offenses.

"What can be done to stay this epidemic of lynching? One thing is the establishment of a greater confidence in the summary and certain punishment of the criminal. Men are afraid of the law's delays and the uncertainty of its results. Not that they doubt the integrity of the judges, but they know that the law abounds with technical rules, and that appellate courts will often reverse a judgment of conviction for a disregard of such rules, notwithstanding a full belief in the guilt of the accused.

Punishment Must Be Prompt.

"If all were certain that the guilty ones would be promptly tried and punished, the inducement to lynch would be largely taken away. In an address which I delivered before the American Bar association at Detroit some years ago I advocated doing away with appeals in criminal cases. It did not meet the favor of the association, but I still believe in its wisdom. For nearly 100 years there was no appeal from the judgment of conviction of criminal cases in our federal courts, and no review except in a few cases in which, two judges sitting, a difference of opinion on a question of law was certified to the supreme court.

"In England the rule has been that

MACEDONIA IS RULED BY FIRE AND SWORD

Bulgarian Government Appeals to Powers for Protection from Uspeakable Atrocities Committed by the Turks.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 16.—Bulgaria has presented a memorandum to the powers setting forth the condition of affairs in Macedonia since the Turkish government undertook to inaugurate reforms. The most precise details, dates, places and names of persons are given in the memorandum, the whole constituting a terrible category of murder, torture, incendiarism, pillage and general oppression.

Massacres, murders, destruction of villages, pillaging and setting fire to houses, arrests, ill treatment, tortures, arbitrary imprisonment and banishment, closing and disorganizing of churches and schools, ruining of merchants, collection of taxes for many years in advance—such are among the acts of the Ottoman administration of the vilayets of Salonica, Monastir, Uskub and Adrianople.

Beginning with the vilayet of Salonica the memorandum states that in the town of Salonica the Bulgarian professors of the university, students and shopkeepers, in fact, all the intelligent Bulgarians in the city, have been cast into prison. One hundred and twenty soldiers entered the village of Gorna-Ribnitsa May 10 and tortured to death five men and two women. During the first three weeks of July 23 villages in the district of Tikvesch were subjected to depredations of Turkish soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks. The villagers were beaten and tortured, the women violated and the houses plundered while the administrative authorities looked on.

In the vilayet of Monastir, artillery razed the town of Smerdesch, houses being left a heap of ruins. At the beginning of July 2 Greek bands, with the connivance of the authorities, pillaged Bulgarian villages and murdered many of their inhabitants.

In the vilayet of Uskub the entire Bulgarian population has been systematically persecuted since last May. The director of the normal school at Uskub was imprisoned because his library contained the "revolutionary" works of "Othello" and "Les Miserables."

In the districts of Palanka, Koschani, Koumanovo and Gostigar the prisons are filled with Bulgarian priests, schoolmasters and merchants. During June the soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks terrorized the inhabitants of the Schtif district, torturing the people with redhot irons. Similar atrocities were perpetrated in the vilayet of Adrianople.

Summarizing the details of the outrages mentioned, the memorandum declares that massacres were perpetrated by regulars and Bashi-Bazouks in the town of Salonica and the villages of Baldevo, Banitza, Tchourilovo, Mogiela, Smerdesch and Neidje, while the scenes of carnage, pillage and incendiarism were everywhere terrible. At Smerdesch over 200 Bul-

Henry C. Griffith Ends His Life at Home in Greensburg.

ARMOUR SALESMAN

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Greensburg, Pa., Aug. 16.—Harry C. Griffith, a member of one of the best families of Greensburg, committed suicide at the home of his parents in West Otterman street this morning in a fit of remorse, brought on by hard drinking. After attempting to end his life by chloroforming himself and gashing his wrists with a razor he shot himself above the left ear with a 32-caliber revolver. He had filled the bath tub half full of water, and it is believed that if he had not ended his life by the third method he would have drowned himself.

Griffith was employed by Armour & Co. as a salesman in towns along the Pennsylvania railroad east of Latrobe. On Wednesday he started out on his regular trip to towns along the West Penn railroad. He went to Latrobe on Wednesday night. There he drank heavily all of the next day and night. On Friday morning he went to Manor and drove to Claridge and Harrison City to canvass for orders. That night he again went to Latrobe and spent the next day in his cups.

He returned to Greensburg last night. He went to bed early, after making preparations for suicide. He was restless during the night and was heard moving about in his room early this morning. At 10 o'clock a revolver shot was heard. Lloyd Houston, a roomer at the Griffith home, and two neighbors were attracted by the shot, and finding the bathroom door locked, broke it open. Griffith was found unconscious on the floor, covered with blood and his wrists horribly slashed.

In his room a four-ounce bottle, only the bottom of which was covered with chloroform, was found. His bed was saturated with blood, indicating that he laid down to await death after attempting to sever the arteries of his wrists. The odor of chloroform was plainly discernible in the room.

Griffith did not regain consciousness and died half an hour after the bullet had ploughed through his brain. Coroner C. A. Wynn viewed the body and decided that no inquest was necessary.

Griffith had been in the employ of Armour & Co. for over two years. He was a good salesman and two weeks ago had received a substantial advance in salary. Eugene K. Hughes, general manager of the local distributing plant of Armour & Co., stated this afternoon that Griffith's accounts were in good condition. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh C. Griffith and was 35 years old.

NEW ROAD TO PARALLEL THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Lord Strathcona Says It Will Not Injure Older Competitor, but Benefit It.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—"A railroad is to be built in Canada to parallel the Canadian Pacific. It will be called the Canadian Trunk. It will extend across Canada from 80 to 200 miles north of the Canadian Pacific. It will be subsidized by the government, in the same manner as the other roads. The new road will not injure its older competitor, but will simply assist in developing the country and bring good results to both roads."

This was the statement made by High Commissioner Lord Strathcona, who is here on his way to Montreal. Canada's "grand old man" talked eloquently of the great future of Canada. He was accompanied by Lady Strathcona and Thomas H. Barker and Sir William Holland, who are to attend the Montreal meeting.

Lord Strathcona declares if a poll of the [illegible] of people were made, less than 200 would be in favor of independence or annexation. He says the people are perfectly satisfied with their system of government.

Halstead to Be the Head.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 16.—(Special.)—It is reported here that Murat Halstead, the veteran editor, is to be at the head of the school for journalism provided for by Joseph Pulitzer. Mr. Halstead is now in New York, having gone there in response to a hurry call.

SWAB ELECTED LABOR MARSHAL

Miscellaneous Trades Make a Machinist Division Chief of Labor Day Parade.

STREET CAR MEN ARE FIRST

Visiting Locals Will March at the Head of the Pittsburgh Trades—Carey Made Adjutant, and Wooster Chief of Staff.

After smashing several slates, John J. Swab, of the International Association of Machinists, was elected division marshal of the first division of the Labor day parade, at the convention of miscellaneous trades delegates, held yesterday afternoon at the headquarters of the Building Trades council, and H. J. Carey of the Journeymen Barbers, adjutant general, and Jacob Wooster of the National Stogie Makers' league, chief of staff. The first division of the parade, which is to be composed of four divisions, will be made up of 46 organizations of Pittsburgh and Allegheny.

At the meeting yesterday there were 71 accredited delegates, representing 46 organizations. C. A. Winslow, chairman of the general committee, called the meeting to order, and S. A. Coleman of the Salespeoples' assembly, was made chairman. After the election drawings for place in line were held. The street car men got first place, but upon the recommendation of the general committee it was unanimously agreed to give the lead of the parade, with the exception of the banner place of local No. 3, International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, to the visiting trades. It had already been determined to assign the out-of-town locals to the first division.

The following is the result of the drawing and shows the location of the unions in the order drawn:

FLYER WRECKED BY OPEN SWITCH

Seven Persons Seriously Injured on Erie Railroad in Cleveland.

CAUSED A TERRIBLE CRASH

The Fast Train Struck an Engine on a Siding—Woman Killed and Two Others Hurt by Accident at Fostoria, O. Street Car Wrecks Buggy.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 16.—A bad accident befell the Cleveland and New York flyer on the Erie railroad, near Literary street, today. The accident was the result of a switch being open which should have been closed. The train crashed into a switch engine on the siding.

THE INJURED.

C. E. ALEXANDER, No. 26 Bradford street, baggage master; badly bruised and ankle sprained.

JOHN BURNS, Wallingford court, engineer of switch engine; back injured.

EDWARD QUINCY, Jersey City, N. J., assistant cook of cafe car; badly scalded.

J. H. DORSEY, Jersey City, waiter in cafe car; bad cuts on forehead and general bruises.

C. D. WILER, Wells Fargo & Co., messenger; bruised.

MISS JUSTUS, Cleveland; cut on shoulder and thumb lacerated.

MRS. CONOVER, Cleveland; bruised and hysterical from fright.

A number of other passengers sustained slight cuts from flying glass.

The force of the collision was tremendous. Both engines were badly wrecked. The baggage car, partly derailed and split in several places, was hurled from its trucks and turned over on its side, resting just on the edge of the steep railroad embankment.

While crossing a trestle at Oak Point, a pleasure resort west of this city, today, four women were struck by a Lake Shore electric car. Mrs. James Schweda died soon after, while the others received injuries which in two cases may prove fatal. The injured are: Mrs. W. Holliday, Mrs. Louis Goerz and Miss Martha Schmenkel. The women were all from Cleveland and were attending a picnic. The dead woman and the two first named of the injured were sisters. A crowd from the picnic grounds made angry threats against the motorman, but cooler counsel prevailed and the dead and injured were placed on the car, which backed to Lorain, where the injured were placed in a hospital.

FOSTORIA, O., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—This afternoon, while driving in Sandusky street, a horse driven by Charles E. Stateler became frightened and whirled the buggy and its occupants in front of a Lake Erie train, resulting in the instant death of Mrs. Stephen Wyer, wife of a well-known citizen, fatally injuring Mrs. Philip Stateler, mother of Mrs. Wyer, and seriously if not fatally injuring Charles Stateler, son of the injured woman. When Mr. Wyer was informed of his wife's death he fainted and is in a serious condition, being a sufferer from heart disease.

KANSAS CITY, MO., Aug. 16.—A buggy containing four persons was struck and wrecked by a street car on the electric park line today. Mollie Berens was fatally hurt, and 10 others were seriously injured. The motorman and conductor were arrested, but later released.

HAS REACHED AGE OF 106

Mrs. Delilah George and Her Descendants.

BUFFALO, Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Mrs. Delilah George, who lives on a farm near Lancaster, 12 miles east of Buffalo, has just celebrated her 106th birthday. For a woman of her great age she is remarkably well preserved. Her memory is almost perfect, her eyesight good and it is only in the last two years that she has worn glasses. She gets about the house with the aid of a cane. She is also slightly afflicted with deafness. Mrs. George's maiden name was Delilah Sumner. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allis Sumner and was born at Wells, Rutland county, Vt., August 12, 1797. The family settled near Lancaster early in the last century, and there Delilah Sumner was married to Joel George in 1815. Husband and wife settled on the farm, which Mrs. George now occupies. Joel George served in the war of 1812 and died 21 years ago. Mrs. George remembers the burning of Buffalo and other incidents of that war. She also claims to remember the death of her sister Mary, which occurred when Mrs. George was 4 years old. In the picture Mrs. George is shown wearing a white cap. To her left is seated her son, James George, who is 84 years old, blind and much more feeble than his mother. The woman to the extreme right in the last row of the picture is Mrs. H. D. Norton, 72 years old, a daughter of Mrs. George. The rest of the group is made up of grandchildren and great-grandchildren of Mrs. George.

James George and Mrs. Norton are the only children of Mrs. George. Through Mrs. Norton Mrs. George has 11 descendants; four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. At the celebration of her birthday Wednesday Mrs. George sang a hymn and remarked to her friends that she hoped to see them all well and at her next birthday celebration.

CAUGHT A CRAMP AND WAS DROWNED

Pleasure Swim of Justice Bloom of McKeesport Had Fatal Ending.

NEGRO ASLEEP FELL INTO RIVER

Mrs. Susanna C. Elliott, an Inmate of the Aged Woman's Home, Dropped Dead While Visiting Her Daughter—Other Morgue Cases.

Justice Bloom, aged 35 years, of McKeesport, was drowned in the Youghiogheny river at the foot of Ferry street. He was walking along the bank of the river when he decided to go in for a swim. He only swam around in the water a short time before being seized with a cramp. His body was recovered.

John M. Tapley, colored, of Courtney, Washington county, was drowned yesterday morning in the Monongahela river at Elkhorn. He had left his home early to visit James Johnson of Elkhorn. He found Johnson had been cut on the face earlier in the morning and volunteered to cross the river to get some court plaster. When he arrived at the landing he found he would have to wait some time, as the ferry was on the other side of the river. He sat down on the landing and fell asleep. He fell into the water and was drowned, his body being recovered about 20 minutes later. Tapley was 35 years old.

Thomas Boyd, 55 years old, of East Liverpool, O., fell from the hayloft of the Pittsburgh Stone Company, No. 513 Rebecca street, Allegheny, early yesterday morning, and was instantly killed. His neck was broken. Boyd was a well-known riverman, but recently secured employment as a stableman with the stone company. It is believed that he was climbing to the loft to prepare to feed the stock when he fell. His body was taken to the morgue and his brother at East Liverpool was notified.

Mrs. Susanna Catherine Elliot, widow of V. J. Elliott, 76 years old, an inmate of the Aged Woman's Presbyterian Home at Wilkinsburg, fell dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. Carroll, at Elliott borough, yesterday. Mrs. Elliot was visiting her daughter and was eating dinner when she was taken ill. The aged woman dropped her spoon. She attempted to reach it on the floor and collapsed. When raised from the floor by her family she was dead. Mrs. Elliot was apparently in the best of health, and was laughing and talking just before she died.

John Johns died yesterday at 7 a. m. at the Allegheny county workhouse, his death being due to consumption. Johns was a Hungarian laborer, 23 years of age and unmarried. The man was received at the prison on June 14, having been sentenced for three years on a charge of felonious assault and battery.

Tony Malclowski, an Austrian, was injured while at work at the Shoenberger mills at Penn avenue and Fifteenth street, yesterday morning, and died at noon at the West Penn hospital. Several heavy iron plates fell from a hoist, injuring the man about the ribs, hips and arms. Malelowski was 38 years old and married. He lived at No. 1625 Penn avenue.

Annie Sulkey of Walkers Mills, died at the West Penn hospital yesterday morning from injuries received Saturday night by being struck by a Panhandle train near her home. Her right leg and hip were crushed and the head and face lacerated. Mrs. Sulkey was 40 years of age.

GORMAN NEUTRAL ON FINANCE BILL

Democratic Leader Does Not Believe in Opposing Republican Program.

HIS ATTITUDE IS EXPLAINED

Proposal to Deposit Customs Receipts in National Banks Not Objectionable in His View—More Flexible Currency Desirable—Sticks to Tariff Issue.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 10, [illegible] Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 16.

When the United States senate again plunges into the discussion of financial questions Senator Gorman, leader of the Democracy in congress and its possible candidate for the presidency, will not be found among those members of the minority opposing remedial legislation. Indeed, it is altogether probable that before the extra session convenes Senator Gorman will call a conference of minority leaders and urge them to abandon the attitude of opposing anything and everything in the way of financial measures proposed by the majority party.

Senator Gorman was not altogether in sympathy with the members of his party who talked to death the Aldrich bill last March. There were features of that measure which he did not approve, but the manner in which it was finally disposed of he did not think dignified nor entirely advantageous to the Democrats. Neither is he in sympathy with what appears to be the attitude of Senators Daniel, Teller and Money in the present agitation.

Mr. Gorman thinks that if the question of politics is to enter into it at all it will be far better for the Democracy if the Republican leaders go before the country, having failed to agree among themselves on the desired legislation, or having failed to muster sufficient strength to pass it.

In fact, Senator Gorman believes that Senators Aldrich, Allison, Platt and Spooner are still groping in the dark and that President Roosevelt himself has not been able to lead them to the light. So far as he has been informed, the subcommittee considering the question at Senator Aldrich's home has made no progress. On this account he thinks it unwise, especially for minority members of the finance committee, to begin, or rather to renew, obstructive tactics so early.

Senator Gorman's friends say that he will not oppose depositing customs receipts in national banks, and will furthermore not oppose a proposition for a flexible currency. In conclusion, it can be positively stated that Senator Gorman does not think, as does Senator Daniel, that the financial question will be the one big issue at the coming session. Nor does he think that it will be carried over into the presidential campaign. On the contrary, he continues to reiterate his belief that the Democrats can do best on the tariff, and the tariff alone, as an issue.

WANT SEPARATE SCHOOLS FOR JEWISH CHILDREN

United Orthodox Rabbis of America Open Convention in Philadelphia.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—The first business session of the convention of the United Orthodox Rabbis of America was held here today. Rabbi Yoffe of Brooklyn, presided.

FAILED TO FIND RIVAL, SO SHOT ANOTHER MAN

Battle in a Negro Boarding House May Result in Murder—If Jerry Hughes Exists He Has Escaped Arrest.

Jerry Hughes shot and seriously wounded Gary G. Campbell in a negro boarding house at No. 480 Penn avenue shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Hughes effected his escape and Campbell was removed to the St. Francis hospital in a dying condition. Eight persons were placed under arrest and taken to the Forty-third street station house, where they will be detained until the detectives have made an investigation of the case. Superintendent of Police John P. McTighe is of the opinion Hughes is a fictitious person and that the assailant of Campbell is under arrest. Campbell refused to give the police any of the particulars of the case. A quantity of window curtains and other house furnishing material were found in the place, and the police are of the opinion these are stolen property. The persons under arrest are H. F. Coosenburg, Charles Jones, George Dean, William Campbell, William Dean, Margerine Dean and Sarah Richardson, and Mrs. S. S. Garland of No. 4416 Calvin street.

Hughes is said to have come from Youngstown, O., about three months ago and has been employed on a sand boat at Homestead. He has been paying a great deal of attention to Mrs. Garland. He was informed that James Dorcas, another man, was with Mrs. Garland a great deal. This made him jealous, and he threatened to shoot Dorcas on sight. Yesterday afternoon he went to the house of George L. Dean, in Penn avenue, in search of Dorcas. Hughes walked into the kitchen where Campbell was alone and asked for Dorcas. Campbell said he was not there and ordered Hughes out of the place. Hughes drew his revolver and shot Campbell. The bullet entered his left lung and lodged in his back. Campbell was heard to plead with Hughes not to shoot again. This did not satisfy Hughes, and he fired again at Campbell.

The shooting attracted the attention of other negroes in the house, and when they confronted Hughes in the kitchen he held them at bay with his revolver, and made his way to Mathilda street. This was the last seen of him. Capt. Peter Welsh and Lieut. R. H. Robinson went to the house and arrested all the inmates.

Campbell was removed to the office of Dr. J. A. Davis, at No. 4704 Penn avenue, where his wounds were temporarily dressed, and he was taken to the hospital. Mrs. Davis was cleaning the hallway after Campbell was removed, and found a loaded revolver back of the umbrella stand with three empty cartridges and two loaded ones in its chambers. The police believe it was placed there by some of Campbell's friends.

The officers went to Mrs. Calvin's house and discovered four sets of portieres and other house furnishing material, and are of the opinion these were stolen.

The finding of the revolver sustains the theory of Supt. McTighe that the shooting was done by some one under arrest.

LAW'S DELAY BLAMED FOR FREQUENCY OF LYNCHING

there was no appeal in criminal cases, although a question of doubt might be reserved by the presiding judge for the consideration of his brethren. The Hon. E. J. Phelps, who was minister to England during Mr. Cleveland's first administration, once told me that while he was there only two cases were so reserved. Does any one doubt that justice was fully administered by the English courts?

Disregard for the Law.

"It is said in extenuation of lynching in case of rape that it is an additional cruelty to the unfortunate victim to compel her to go upon the witness stand and in the presence of a mixed crowd tell the story of her wrongs, especially when she may be subject to cross-examination by over-zealous counsel. I do not belittle this matter, but it must be remembered that often the unfortunate victim never lives to tell the story of her wrongs; that if she does survive she must tell it to some, and the whole community knows the fact.

"Even in the court-room any high-minded judge will stay counsel from any unnecessary cross-examination, and finally, if any lawyer should attempt it the community may treat him as an outcast. I can but think that if the community felt that the criminal would certainly receive the punishment he deserves, and receive it soon, the eagerness for lynching would disappear, and mobs, whose gatherings too often mean not merely the destruction of jails and other property, but also the loss of innocent lives, would greatly diminish in number.

"One thing is certain—the tendency of lynching is to undermine respect for the law, and unless it be checked we need not be astonished if it be resorted to for all kinds of offenses and oftentimes the innocent suffer for wrongs committed by others."

garians were shot, killed with swords or burned to death. Over 250 houses and the churches and schools were set on fire with petroleum and pillaged, the property being sold by the soldiers. Similar scenes occurred at Gorna-Ribnitza, Igoumenetz, Dobrilaki and Nikoden. The villagers there abandoned their homes and fled to the mountains. Over 3,000 men, women and children fled from the Sanjak of Seres and even more from the sanjak of Kirkkilisse.

It is difficult, says the memorandum, to obtain the exact number of Bulgarians who were imprisoned, mostly on the flimsiest pretexts as when they were released others were immediately arrested. The estimates obtainable give for the vilayet of Salonica 900 prisoners; for Uskub, 500; for Monastir, 850, and for Adrianople, 550. Total, 2,800.

In conclusion the memorandum says:

> Not long ago the porte denounced the revolutionary movement as being fomented by Bulgaria and tried to put the responsibility on this principality. Today it must acknowledge that it is bad administration which is the cause of the trouble. The porte must learn that cruel injustice and bloody repression do not restore order in a country. The porte formally promised the Bulgarian government to cease the arrests of Bulgarian priests and school masters, reopen the churches and schools, release the prisoners and punish the officials guilty of exactions; in short, to adopt a policy of justice and amelioration.
> Not only has the porte failed to observe a single one of these promises but it has enacted sterner measures of repression. To give only one example:
> "It is prescribed as a condition of his release that a Bulgarian prisoner must furnish either financial or bond security, but in the latter case the surety must be a Turkish subject of non-Bulgarian origin. It is easy to comprehend that the imprisoned Bulgarians find it impossible to obtain release under such conditions. By this and other similar acts the Ottoman administration can be judged.
> The causes of this revolution are today known. The responsibility is fixed and the porte can no longer accuse the Bulgarian principality.

BRIDGES WILL BE ABANDONED

low Forty-third street, as well as the physical condition of several structures, asserted the official, are such that if the bridges have to be raised at the expense of the owners it will mean the wiping out of the greater number of them.

Recommendation Is New.

These remarks were inspired by the information given in The Gazette yesterday morning to the effect that the board, composed of Col. Garrett Lidecker, Capt. W. L. Sibert and Capt. W. E. Craighill, had recommended that the bridges over the Allegheny be raised, as they are, in their present location, an impediment to navigation. Officials of all the bridge companies and James McCrea, first vice president of the Pennsylvania lines west, were of the opinion that the report referred to is not a new one. Capt. Sibert, who has personal supervision of the work in this district, however, is authority for the statement that the report has just been made with the above recommendation.

"The engineers," continued the Sixth Street Bridge Company official, "and Capts. Rodgers, Rees and Dravo, seem to have overlooked the essential point of liabilities. The bridge owners have been compelled to bear the brunt of this agitation as well as the expense of the hearings, and the matter has reached such a point that if Secretary Root is foolish enough to approve the report of the engineering board, then we will take the thing to the supreme court of the United States, where we feel sure we can get a decision in our favor.

Railroads Will Also Fight.

"The railroads hold practically the same view. Personally, I do not believe the Fort Wayne railroad has any intention of raising its very expensive bridge which it has just completed at Eleventh street.

"The supreme court has held in the case of the Monongahela Navigation Company that the locks, dams and dykes that company had constructed on the Monongahela river, instead of being obstructions to navigation, were of great value, notwithstanding the reports of the United States engineers to the contrary, and the disposition of the war department to even condemn and confiscate the property of the company. The case of the bridges across the Allegheny river is almost identical.

"The bridges have been built under charters of the state of Pennsylvania and these charters are not to be declared void by the supreme court, as was attempted in the case of the Monongahela Navigation Company. The bridge companies have some financial interest in the matter, and as privately owned properties the government has no right to step in and take them. How are the owners—the stockholders—to be remunerated?

Franchises Are Valuable.

"Not only are the structures worth something, but the franchises are valuable. The decision of the court in the case of the Monongahela Navigation Company ordered that the government not only pay for the physical properties, but the franchises which entitled the navigation company to collect tolls. So it was, instead of the government paying $1,000,000 for the dams, dykes and locks alone, it had to pay for the franchises, which were held to be "properties," the total amount of $3,600,000. We are not afraid to air the case in court, nor, as the matter now stands, are we afraid of the secretary of war.

"In making these statements we admit that personal interest plays an important part, but we are not blind to the fact that there is a broader side, and we are keenly alive to it. It really resolves itself into a personal matter for every citizen of the two cities.

"If the bridges are raised—some with their present heavy bonded indebtedness—there is sure to come a time when the city will want to purchase them, and a greater price will then have to be paid.

Overlooked Important Point.

"The bridge companies haven't a reserve fund from which to make repairs or elevations. The engineers and coal men have made a second and grave mistake of not consulting the cities of Allegheny and Pittsburgh. Councils of both cities, I might say by the way of remembrance, have passed resolutions condemning the raising of bridges.

When the bridges go up I think the street levels should likewise go up. The engineers can put the bridges up, but they don't tell us how to put the streets up. That is a question for the taxpayers. And then it also raises the endless question as to who will reimburse the property owners. I am basing all of my statements on the fact that it is not necessary to raise the bridges to get free navigation at all stages, but even if the reverse were the case, I think my conclusions would hold good."

From talks with directors and officials of all the bridge companies from the head of the Ohio to Forty-third street on the Allegheny river, it is apparent that out of the total of six street bridges, all but one will have to be demolished if ordered raised.

A Financial Statement.

This statement is not authoritative, although it is partly borne out by the following financial standing of the bridges:

The Union Bridge company—Location, the Point; unfit for traffic and not in use; heavily bonded and not declaring dividends; has been ordered to raise; will probably be demolished.

Sixth Street Bridge company — Location, Sixth street; in good physical condition and paying regular dividends of 16 per cent on capital stock of $300,000; diminishing debt of $30,000 at 5 per cent, part of loan for rebuilding bridge; would likely not be abandoned; cost about $450,000.

North Side Bridge company—Location, Seventh street; physical condition fair; bonded indebtedness, $250,000; preferred stock, $200,000; common stock, $300,000; cost of bridge, about $200,000.

Pittsburgh and Allegheny Bridge company—Location, Ninth street; physical condition, fair; bonded indebtedness, $300,000; capital stock, $160,000; cost of bridge, $150,000; paying no dividends; paying 5 per cent of bonds.

North Liberties Bridge company—Location, Sixth street; physical condition very poor; capital stock, $100,000; no bonds; paying dividend of 12 to 15 per cent; owners claim raising would mean abandonment.

Ewalt Street Bridge company—Location, Forty-third street; physical condition, fair; capitalization not known.

Given No Consideration.

The bridges of the Pennsylvania lines west and the Baltimore & Ohio are almost in perfect condition. That of the Ft. Wayne at Eleventh street is a four-track, double-deck bridge, and is entirely new, being constructed at a cost of over $1,000,000.

James McCrea, first vice president of the Pennsylvania lines, said yesterday, in reply to a question as to the probable cost of raising the bridge, that he did not care to make an estimate, as it had never been considered by the company.

PRESIDENT AT CHURCH ON THE KEARSARGE

officers were arranged in the rear of the president's party. The music was led by the flagship's orchestra.

Chaplain Isaacs' sermon was particularly addressed to the officers and men of the ship. His special theme was that the man who served his country best is he who also serves best his God.

At the conclusion of the service Mrs. Roosevelt and the other ladies were shown over the ship by Flag Lieutenant Eberle and were particularly delighted with the magnificent punch bowl presented by the German emperor on the occasion of the visit of the Kearsarge to Kiel.

President's Salute Omitted.

When the president left the Kearsarge at 1 p. m. the sides of all the ships were again manned and every honor was paid except the firing of the salute which was omitted because his visit was unofficial and was made on a Sunday.

At the conclusion of the review tomorrow the battleships Kearsarge, Illinois and Alabama will go seaward at full speed, which they will maintain until they reach Race Rock, at the eastern entrance of the Long Island sound.

It is understood that the first division of torpedo boat destroyers, composed of the Decatur, Bainbridge, Barry, Dale and Chauncey, under command of Lieutenant Lloyd H. Chandler, son of the former secretary of the navy, after the maneuvers of the summer which will be concluded on the 29th inst., will proceed to the Asiatic station via the Suez canal.

The cruiser Chicago, which just arrived from Europe, joined the fleet today and will participate in the review.

FELL HEIR TO FORTUNE WHILE CROSSING OCEAN

Steubenville Man's Death Gave Unexpected Wealth to His Nephew.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—While en route on the high seas for America to seek his fortune, Stanislaus Rolaenck, an immigrant on the steamship Noordland, from Liverpool, which arrived in this city tonight, fell heir to a fortune of $25,000.

Rolaenck, who admitted that he was practically penniless, knew nothing of his inheritance until the big ship pulled up in the dock. He is 19 years of age. His father's brother, John Rolaenck, a relative he had never seen, but at whose solicitation he was making the voyage, died suddenly on Thursday at Steubenville, O., where he owned a large farm, which estate, with considerable cash, he bequeathed to his nephew.

The foreman of the farm, James Sneed, arrived in Philadelphia today. Snead conveyed to the young immigrant the news of his uncle's death and of his sudden elevation to wealth. Rolaenck will leave for Steubenville tomorrow.

HEARNE REPORTS ON COLORADO PROPERTIES

New Owners of Colorado Fuel and Iron Find Plants in Excellent Shape.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

DENVER, Aug. 16.—Upon the arrival last evening of J. H. McClements, chairman of the board of directors of the Colorado Fuel & Iron company, Fred J. Hearne of Pittsburgh made a verbal report of his recent investigation of the company's properties in the interests of John D. Rockefeller and George J. Gould.

This report was a distinct and agreeable surprise to Mr. McClements, who stated that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will be here for the meeting and that he now believes these two, with probably Mr. Hearne and others, will go on such a tour as Mr. Hearne has made.

"I am pleased also with the general condition of things as Mr. Hearne found them. He says everything is in fine shape," he said.

Later in his conversation, however, Mr. McClements disclosed that while Mr. Hearne reported things in fine shape, he urged also that they be made even finer. It was Mr. McClements' implication that Mr. Hearne urges that all improvements now under way or projected be carried through to completion, notwithstanding the great expenditure which will be necessary. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., arrived this evening.

PITTSBURGHER TO WED THE BELLE OF COLORADO

Engagement of Miss Case of Denver to Gilbert McElveen Is Announced.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

DENVER, Aug. 16.—The most beautiful girl in Denver is engaged to a wealthy young man of Pittsburgh. Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Case announce the engagement of their daughter, Edna Muriel, to Gilbert McElveen.

Miss Case is a tall blonde of the "Christy Girl" type, and is conceded to be the handsomest girl in Denver's exclusive society. She made her debut in 1898 after being graduated from a woman's college in Washington. She spent last winter in Honolulu and on the voyage home met Mr. McElveen, who came to Denver from Pittsburgh, and for the past six months has been stopping at the Denver club.

Since their meeting they have been seen constantly together and their engagement has been a matter of conjecture for some time. The plans for the wedding have not matured, but it will be one of the earliest of the fashionable fall weddings.

Miss Case was a girl friend of Mrs. Cornelia Baxter Tevis, widow of the late California millionaire, and the two, though of distinct types, were regarded as the handsomest women in Colorado.

Steel Plants to Resume.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Besides the Bessemer plant of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, which has been remodeled and its capacity increased from 800 to 1,300 tons per day, and the new 10-inch continuous mill of the American steel hoop department, which will have a capacity of 250 tons per day, it is said that the Hamilton plant of the Republic will be placed in operation this week. The first two plants will be started tomorrow morning.

Shot Dead During Quarrel.

WHEELING, W. VA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—At Crescent, a mining town between Barton and Maynard, O., Joseph Christian, it is alleged, shot and killed Abraham Skidmore this afternoon as the result of a quarrel. Christian is in jail at St. Clairsville.

Two Hungarians Stabbed.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Stephen Christ, a Hungarian laborer, is alleged to have fatally stabbed Joe Conti and seriously wounded John Wolf, Hungarians, in a quarrel here tonight over a girl. Christ was arrested.

PROF. OSBALDESTEN IS YET IN NEW YORK

with which Dr. Daly is said by Osbaldesten to have been connected, Mrs. Lugas said last night:

"I saw Dr. Daly but twice, and both times the professor was present. The first time Dr. Daly was at the house the professor introduced him to me and we talked together only a few minutes. The second time was the day before Dr. Daly's death. The doctor came to the house and went through training exercises with Osbaldesten. The professor had told the doctor of my way of preparing coffee, and the doctor, just before he left, told me in the professor's presence that I must tell him how to make the coffee. The next day Dr. Daly was found dead. Can't you see the point. Dr. Daly is dead and cannot reply to Osbaldesten.

"Why, it is those very pamphlets which secured the professor's acquittal. The attorney for the defense presented them in court and the court concluded that any man that could write such stuff must be insane.

Work of Imagination.

"He tells things so circumstantially in one of those books that almost anyone reading it would be disposed to think that there must be some truth in what he writes. But nearly everything in it is made up wholly from the imagination.

"I understand that the manuscript was written in English by Osbaldesten and translated by a young man who was studying to be a masseur under him. That young man, I am informed, when he heard that the professor had been arrested in Germany, left Pittsburgh, thinking perhaps that his connection with the thing might cause trouble for him."

"I have written to Osbaldesten that I have married the woman whom he insists on claiming as his wife, and that I will protect her," said Lugas. "I will see the postoffice authorities tomorrow to learn if I cannot have him arrested for sending her threatening letters through the mail."

One of the books has pictures of nude women, which Osbaldesten alleges represent the present Mrs. Lugas. Mrs. Lugas said the pictures are not of her.

"Osbaldesten has a habit, however, of pasting heads of women onto the pictures of nude bodies and then having them photographed," she said. "He once pasted the picture of a New York society belle on another picture of a nude woman and had photographs struck off."

TIES FOUND ON TRACK.

Fast Train on the Panhandle Railroad Has a Narrow Escape.

Passengers on the Panhandle section of the Pennsylvania limited had a narrow escape from being wrecked about 10 miles west of Pittsburgh last night. When the Primrose accommodation reached a point about a mile west of Walker's mills, Engineer Thomas Campbell of the accommodation train discovered a railroad tie lying across the westbound track. He stopped his train and notified Conductor McGee and men were sent back to investigate. They found the end of one tie on the track and another tie wedged in a switch.

About two minutes after the obstructions were removed the limited, running at high speed, flew by with the engineer and passengers unconscious of their narrow escape.

It was first thought an attempt had been made to wreck the limited, but upon investigation it was found that a freight train loaded with railroad ties had passed the point a short time before and it is believed that the ties fell off a car.

OUR AUGUST BLANKET SALE

A Warm Proposition for Mid-August, but It Saves You Money.

There are other Special Sales announced in this advertisement. Read about them and be sure you see the goods today, if you can get to the store.

Our Annual Sale of Blankets and Comforts Begins Today, August 17th.

At no time since existence of this store has more time and care and forethought been exercised in the selection of qualities, workmanship and designs than we put forth for this Sale. We have determined to make this the largest August Sale of Blankets and Comforts we ever held. With this object in view we began six months ago to gather our several lines together and we can say without fear of contradiction that today we are enabled to offer our patrons the best values at lower prices than have ever been offered in Pittsburg.

The matron who has to replenish her Winter wants; the youth or maid whose college supplies need attending to; hotel-keepers and institutions whose winter wants are not supplied can, by taking advantage of this unmatchable sale of fine goods, save 25 per cent on their Winter wants.

Preliminary Display of Fall Long Coat Walking Suits.

This morning we shall be prepared to show a rather large and decidedly varied gathering of Tailored Long Coat Suits for Women.

Made of handsome men's wear mixtures, in the most pleasing combination of greys, greens, blues, tans, Oxfords, coverts, as well as solid blues and black in Zibeline cheviots, etc. These suits represent every new model that has been approved by the leading makers of the Fashion Centers of Europe and America, and they embody all the desirable, as well as the smart features, of the much-talked of long-coat suits.

While it is true that this style of suit has been worn to a greater or less extent for some weeks past, they were merely experiments in almost every particular. The lines of the coat were incorrect, the style of front either plain, or with shaped or gathered blouse, was not the result of the thought and care of the world's leaders in designing coats, and in every way does the suit now offered differ from the embryo styles of a month ago.

The collection we show is by no means a complete one in quantity, but we offer these as being correct and smart in every way and enough of them to enable you to choose without hesitancy.

Prices range from $15.00 for a grey mixture, that has the style of a handsome foreign mixture at $50.00.

The classes at $25.00, $30.00 and $35.00 are exceptionally inviting, and additions to all classes are being made almost hourly.

We suggest that you anticipate your needs in order to give our fitters and tailors ample time to make any needed alterations carefully and correctly.

Special for Today.

An all-wool tan covert Walking Suit with 11-gore skirt, each seam with half-inch lap and 7 rows stitching around bottom. Coat 30 inches long, 10 lap seams, wide fly front. Sleeve with two lap seams outside and turnback cuff. Men's flat collar. Entire coat lined with highest class of guaranteed satin. The value is $40.00, the Price Today Is $29.00.

NOTE—In the event that all are sold during the day, special orders will be taken from late comers up to 4:30 p. m., at the same price. After that hour no orders will be taken.

Monday, August 17, 1903.

Yesterday's papers contained a news dispatch that removes all doubt that the Marconi wireless system has entered the domain of the practical. It was used to transmit an order for money from one ship to another. That is in the highest sense practical. No one who has ever found himself a few dollars shy of his necessities away from home can be induced to cast aspersions upon an agency that is capable of bringing relief in that sort of an emergency. No matter if Marconi can't send press dispatches across the ocean, or if the trolley cars do interfere with his thunder works, or if his messages can be stolen by the unauthorized. His system is practical. It has produced coin of the realm where and when it was needed.

James W. Clark, director of the department of public charities, appeals for a hospital for consumptives at Marshalsea. The appeal ought to be heard if the plans are not laid on extravagant lines. A considerable number of the unfortunates who find asylum on the city farm are brought there by tuberculosis in its advanced forms. It would be better for the patients and better for others on the farm to have a separate domicile for the consumptives, with proper sanitary arrangements. The insane have their separate hospital—that is necessary. The consumptives ought to have theirs, because it would be more wholesome for the paupers who are not diseased and more comfortable for those who are.

One act of uncontrolled passion on the part of a Turkish gendarme has done more to rouse Russia than all the machinations of the Macedonia "Christians" and the Bulgarians. The murder of a Russian consul at his post of duty is an injury not to be condoned at St. Petersburg. The Russian fleet on the Black sea has moved and if that is not sufficient to secure redress as ample as Russia desires, there is little doubt the army will soon be moving, too. The situation is critical. Russia has longed for possession of the gate to the Mediterranean, has restrained its desire, but if it again goes to war with the Turk it will come away with the coveted prize and the map of Europe will look different.

A bulletin from the census bureau conveys the information that irrigation in Texas has made possible rice fields that will obviate the necessity for the importation of that article. The total cost of the irrigation works in that state exceed $5,000,000, have reclaimed an area of 287,000 acres, of which 173,000 are devoted to rice. The yield from that area equals the imports of rice in former years, and when the planters have mastered the business it will be highly profitable and there will be a surplus for export. This is irrigation to some purpose and is an indication of the vastness of the undeveloped food resources of this country. There are millions of fertile acres that have never been turned by the plow or tickled by the cultivator into laughing for the harvest they will bear.

The Hon. Bourke Cockran, former silver-tongued oratorical representative of Tammany, has returned to New York after a long sojourn abroad and delivered himself of the opinion that Ireland will have home rule very soon. He declares the home rule will come as a result of the land purchase bill and pictures a rosy future for Ireland and a total cessation of emigration to America. Mr. Cockran is busiest when talking. Home rule is a possibility for Ireland after a decade or so, and prosperity is a probability of the nearer future. But emigration will not wholly cease. There will always be some Irishmen "ferninst" the government and ready to come to America to maintain the supply of Cockrans and others whose oratory serves to divert the American genius from a too constant application to the serious side of affairs.

While Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland hesitated to say whether or not he would like to have an empty honor in the shape of a Democratic nomination for governor of Ohio, Mr. Zimmerman of Springfield began to set up pins to secure that compliment for himself. When Mr. Johnson decided he wanted the plum, Mr. Zimmerman went right on hunting delegates. At the present moment Mr. Zimmerman has the majority of delegates named. He keeps getting them right along, and the more Mr. Bryan indorses Johnson, the faster the Ohio delegates come in for Zimmerman. It looks very much as though the mayor of Cleveland had hesitated and lost. His low-fare and single-tax ideas have lost much of their conjuring power, and he is not the only man in Ohio who has a barrel as the result of preaching one thing and practicing another.

A story comes out from Saratoga, on the authority of a member of congress, that President Roosevelt plans to make Elihu Root, now secretary of the war department, governor of New York next year and president of the United States in 1908. It may be the president is forwarding Mr. Root's ambition to be governor of New York—if he has such an ambition—but we do not believe for a moment he is laying any political wires for 1908. If Mr. Root becomes governor of New York his record in that office may carry him to the White House. There are precedents for that, but it is ridiculous to attribute to President Roosevelt a purpose to secure both offices for his war secretary. Mr. Root should make a good governor. He should also make a good president. He is a man of ability. His chance to be either, however, rests with the people, not with the president.

Estimates Coming.

Director Edward M. Bigelow promises to have ready estimates on the filtration plant and on the removal of the "hump" probably this week. This is as much speed as any one could desire. True, the filtration estimates might have been prepared long ago and the work should now be well under way, but the past cannot be recalled and reason only demands the utmost diligence now that the matter is started. Mr. Bigelow does not indicate the cost of either enterprise, but he makes it apparent he does not at all agree with the opposition estimates on the cost of cutting the hump.

We believe the director may make it apparent in the figures to be submitted to councils that neither the filtration plant nor the cutting of the hump will cost such enormous sums that the city cannot afford to proceed with them. First, of course, comes filtration. That is essential to the public health. The reduction of the hump is necessary to the public convenience. Convenience waits upon safety, though both should be secured as rapidly as possible.

With a metered service the plant designed by the filtration engineers would be ample for the supply of the entire city—probably more than sufficient. The exigency of the moment is a plant to filter the water supplied by the city. The extension to the South Side in 1906 ought to be provided for right away, but matters may be expedited for both sections if work can be begun upon the filter without waiting for the issue of bonds that will likely be necessary to acquire a pipeage system on the South Side. In this matter the element of time is important, for typhoid does not stop while the work is delayed.

The National Conventions.

It is not probable that "one or both national political conventions" for the nomination of candidates for president and vice president will be held in Baltimore next year. Baltimore had such a large measure of success with other conventions this year that a movement was started to induce both political parties to hold their big conventions in that city in 1904. The demand has not, however, gained much financial strength to date, and financial strength, as well as political and sentimental considerations must be well to the front to achieve success in this matter. Baltimore will have much better prospect of securing one of the conventions if it addresses itself earnestly to the task of capturing one than if it essays the larger effort of capturing two, but the prospect that any eastern city will entertain one of the conventions of 1904 is not good. The Democratic party will probably feel the need of again addressing itself to western sentiment, especially as its leaders intend that tariff reform shall be the dominating issue. Therefore, the Democratic national committee will probably be inclined toward a western city for the influence that convention enthusiasm may exert on western minds. The last Republican national convention was in Philadelphia, and for that reason, if for no other, the Republican national committee will be more likely to favor a western city for the convention of 1904. After this is said, however, it is the city which can insure the most in the way of entertainment for the delegates, facilities for convention business and cash for convention expenses that will have greatest weight with the national committees. What influence the St. Louis exposition and travel to and from the exposition city may have on the decision must also be taken account of. The tide will be naturally toward St. Louis during the season of 1904, and St. Louis may be a strong competitor for convention honors. But St. Louis will be crowded without conventions. Baltimore is the only eastern city that has thus far entered the lists as a bidder for a national convention with any evidence of serious purpose, but Baltimore will need to be up and doing to win.

The Results So Far.

In last week's issue of the Independent, Edward Tregear, the New Zealand commissioner of labor, gives an account of the working of the compulsory arbitration act, which shows that so far at least it has not been inconsistent with the industrial development of the country and with the maintenance of an extraordinary degree of prosperity. The law has been in existence nine years. In the last five years the annual wages paid in the factories have increased from $9,537,960 to $15,472,805. Factories have increased 80 per cent, the number of workers 28 per cent, while wages paid increased 62 per cent. The exports of the country are advancing by leaps and bounds, increasing last year by 25 per cent over the previous year, or from $60,790,130 to $75,873,695, for a population which in 1901 was 772,719, a per capita of $98 as against $33 for the United States. Such figures leave no doubt as to the industrial prosperity of New Zealand under the compulsory arbitration act.

Some time ago a report was published that the act had broken down in regard to a lockout in the furniture trade in Auckland. It was stated that the workers obtained an award of increased wages and that the employers closed their shops rather than pay the increase. Mr. Tregear states that what did take place was the discharge of workmen whose services were not worth the minimum wage decreed by the court. There was no strike and no lockout, and as investigation showed that the discharges were upon individual grounds and not in pursuance of any agreement or combination among the employers, their action was not open to prosecution. The law does not abrogate the right of employers to discharge unsatisfactory hands or the right of a workman to change his employer. The law simply settles wage disputes and fixes the minimum wage. Under the operation of the law employers have become as thoroughly organized as the workers. There are registered 97 industrial unions of employers and 274 industrial unions of workers.

Besides the arbitration act there are many labor laws, such as workmen's compensation for accident, old age pensions, domestic servants registry, factory, shop and office regulations. There are also laws passed in the interest of labor which prevents the country from being made the dumping ground of European pauperism. The net increase of population through immigration has been only 36,000 in 10 years, so that population grows by natural increase, the births being nearly three times the deaths. That no community in the world exceeds New Zealand in the diffusion of comfort and well being among its members is a fact that is not to be disputed. Mr. Tregear sums up the situation by saying:

> For an outlay of some $10,000 a year—less than the cost of one day's destruction to the community over a single strike—we have industrial peace and commercial security. Here trade disputes assume no more importance in the public mind than do the ordinary civil law cases reported in the morning newspaper.

Such a condition of affairs is certainly an achievement in government, well worth careful observation.

Engineers' Report.

There is no surprise in the report of government engineers favorable to the deepening of the channel of the Ohio, or the raising of the bridges over the Allegheny. Prior reports to the war department indicated such a conclusion. But it does not follow that recommendations of the board will be followed, and it is a distinctly favorable sign to other than purely river interests that the matter is to be submitted to congress rather than to be handled by the war department.

Government engineers look at matters of this sort from a peculiar point of view. Primarily they are in the service of the war department and are trained to be on the lookout for military advantage. The convenience of mere industries or peaceful avocations has small consequence to a man whose problem is the defense of the country in time of war, the mobilization of armies, the transport of supplies, or the transfer of forces. In the code of the army engineer there is no such question as "What does it cost?" The ever recurrent question is "Can it be done?" leaving to the treasury department the task of financing the operation. In time of war it is fortunate that economy is not a first consideration, but in time of peace it is also fortunate the war department is not supreme and that the treasury or other departments have an equal voice in the discussion of public questions.

In the matter of a nine-foot channel on the Ohio military and industrial needs coincide, but in the matter of the bridges over the Allegheny river they are at variance. The possible advantage of military transport on the Allegheny is so remote that it weighs little against the present industrial need of easy transit across the stream. Industrial needs along the river are practically confined to large traffic, and that can be accommodated without disturbing the means of easy communication from shore to shore. While the army engineer may look a century ahead and devise roads without regard to cost, commercial interests must look to the present and immediate future for their profits.

Thus it is fortunate that the whole subject will go to congress, where it will get full consideration in all of its phases. Congress will not overlook industrial necessities or the convenience of ordinary traffic. It is not likely to order the raising of bridges accommodating the enormous traffic passing between Pittsburgh and Allegheny without good reason. Even if it should decide to provide for possible future military contingency its order will be made effective at a future date of say 30 or 50 years, permitting gradual changes, without virtual confiscation of private property. At the same time congress may be expected to scrutinize the bill of expense, which the army engineer leaves to the treasury department, and if it does decide to destroy private property for public use it will provide in advance for the payment of damages.

It must be said for the board of engineers that in one particular they have taken account of existing conditions. That is in the recommendation for lowering the sills of the Ohio dams and dredging the river to obtain the nine foot depth without greatly exceeding the present pool level. That, however, is quite expensive work and the war department has received the estimates with reservations.

Of course the United States, which in the last year paid in ocean freights to foreign ships $250,000,000, got what it paid for, but if the same money had been paid to American ships, it would have received the service and added the profit of the transaction to its capital account.

Discussion among Democratic leaders concerning the geographical equation of their state ticket is principally useful as a pointer that they have not decided to forego the expense of having one this year.

There is no longer any doubt as to whether Tom L. Johnson will accept the Democratic nomination for governor of Ohio, if he can get it, but there is a growing doubt as to whether he can get it.

Senator Platt's declaration that Roosevelt will carry New York in November, 1904, is another pointer as to the unanimity that will prevail in the national convention.

The recommendation of a board of army engineers in favor of raising the bridges over the Allegheny river at Pittsburgh will raise a storm of disapproval.

The principal amusement in Wall street nowadays is guessing the bank statement. Guessing which shell the pea is under isn't a circumstance to it.

A New Jersey man who carved the alphabet on the head of a pin considers it no small achievement, even if one does need a microscope to see it.

Russell Sage is one of the exceptions which prove the rule that the man who takes money to Wall street leaves it there.

With a wheat crop estimated at 40,000,000 bushels Oklahoma looms up large enough to have a star on the flag.

Joseph Pulitzer and his $2,000,000 for a school of journalism were soon parted.

It is suspected that some of the Balkan war news is imagined in London.

Next year's convention roads will nearly all lead to St. Louis.

IN THE EYE OF FAME.

Anton Dvorak has written a new opera called "Armida," to be produced at the Prague National theater the beginning of October. The libretto is by Dr. Vrchlicky, who, like Dvorak, is a member of the Austrian house of lords.

Miss Caroline L. Greisheim, a clerk in the civil service departmetn at Washington, has had a unique duty cut out for her. She has been detailed to make a tour of inspection of the postoffices of the country and interpret the civil service regulations.

During the recent visit of Baron Speck von Sternburg to the president at Sagamore hill, the ambassador and the president showed themselves to be evenly matched as marksmen. Once they tied. The president outscored the ambassador once, and then the ambassador beat the president.

Eugene McCarthy, who is only 23 years of age, ran for the assembly in New York last fall and was elected. This was largely due to the efforts of Miss S. M. Goodwine, a schoolteacher, who made a personal canvass of the district in support of Mr. McCarthy and went with him on his speaking tours. Miss Goodwine will spend the coming winter at Albany, the wife of Eugene McCarthy.

The descendants of John Alden and Priscilla at their recent reunion in Duxbury, Mass., started a subscription for a fund to buy the old Alden homestead in that town. President George W. Alden of the association says it can be bought at a reasonable price. The house, erected by John Alden's grandson and now 250 years old, has been held by the Alden family through all its history, and is now occupied by John W. Alden and his wife, Mr. Alden being a direct descendant from the original John.

Change of Habits.

The quasi-miraculous benefits which are associated with change of air in the popular belief are in reality derived when they accrue from change of environment and change of habits of life, says the Medical Review. In a great many instances the measure of benefit obtainable would be as effectually secured, and at much less expense, by mere change of habits without the fatigue and inconvenience of change of domicile. The overwrought city clerk might advantageously take to driving a cab, while the cabman would find it a relief to discharge for a time the functions of caretaker of a deserted house. Many an overworked physician would experience a distinct improvement were he to qualify as chauffeur, with no other object in view than to cover space, and there are few domestic servants whose health would not be sensibly modified by a brief experience as milkmaid or gleaner, should the season lend itself to that pursuit. The "literary gent" whose brain is sterile of new ideas might recuperate his energies by usurping the role of a sick man and remaining in bed for a week or two.

A Southern Indorsement.

The president by no means proposes to temporize with lynching, but he has gone to the root of the matter. He finds its chief cause in the failure of the courts, and in the loss of confidence by the people in them. The majesty of the law is in the law's own keeping. If the ministers of the law fail to maintain its authority, dignity and efficacy in the punishment of criminals, then it is like the salt that has lost its savor. It will be cast out and trampled under foot.

As to the president, his utterance is full of sense and reason, and it shows a full comprehension of the entire situation which has made popular justice such a prominent feature in American life. The people have created the machinery of justice, and when that fails, the people must and will apply some other remedy for the protection of society and the repression of crime.—New Orleans Picayune.

The Voice of the Mob.

The astounding defense of lynching made at Chautauqua by John Temple Graves of Atlanta, Ga., cannot be accepted as the voice of the south. It is the voice of the mob, not of civilization and law, and represents that element in the south which Senator Tillman of South Carolina and Senator Money of Mississippi represent at Washington. It is composed of incorrigible negro haters, men who are animated today by the same race prejudices and passions which animated their slave-holding ancestors. They are the incurable bourbons of the south and will remain unchanged till death removes them from earth. It is said of Mr. Graves that he is a grand nephew of John C. Calhoun. He might be the spirit of John C. Calhoun so far as his sentiments and utterances are concerned.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

SEA POWER IN THE SANCTUM.

The man who owns the office now
And dominates the place,
Who takes no orders from the chief,
And dictates as to space,
Is he who has a breezy air,
Who talks about the sea,
And writes—"The yacht Reliance
On
her
lee."

He tells the city editor,
"I guess a page will do.
You ought to see her windward work,
She's got a dandy crew,
Her spinnaker was boomed to port
As pretty as could be.
You should have seen Reliance leave
The others
On her
lee."

No sailor is the city boss,
To him it all is Greek,
He does his yachting in a creek,
And so he says: "We'll go ahead,
We'll cut down stuff, by gee,
We must tell how Reliance left
The others
On her
lee."

The baseball man isn't in it now,
He used to be, of course,
And he who runs the sporting page
Is only underboss.
The man with tan upon his face,
Who talks about the sea,
Is it—For he knows all about Reliance and her
lee."

The Quiet Observer.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

Earth is here so kind, that just tickle her with a hoe and she laughs with a harvest.
—Douglas Jerrold.

A great day at Jackson Center was last Saturday—Jackson Center, Mercer county, Pennsylvania.

It was Harvest Home Day No. 5, and it was all right—the day, the dinner and the harvest.

It is true the corn isn't all safely out of the weeds yet, and a heavy rain might lodge some of the oats; but for all that the people had ample excuse for meeting together and feeling good on account of the harvest that has already been gathered, even if something should happen to that which is standing out.

It was a day of thanksgiving and praise. Not that the day was devoted to preaching and praying nor singing, but just to feeling good.

Words are weak in comparison with feelings when it comes to expressing thankfulness and gratitude; and they may be, and often are, as false as they are weak. Besides, God does not hear our words, but feels the impulse of our hearts. He knows when we are really grateful without saying a word; and He knows, too, whether we are good and neighborly, or mean and grouchy. Bluff and bluster and lying won't do.

But there wasn't any of that at Jackson Center on this occasion—at least not a whole lot, and it was only in words, and these only from the lips and not from the heart.

* * * * *

Maybe you never were at Jackson Center; but that doesn't matter, since it is only one of many delightful places that heaven has provided for the special comfort of man, each place being known by a different name.

And yet there are few to match the one that bears the name of Jackson Center. It is situated on the crest of one of the swells of land that may aptly be likened to the waves of the ocean when in a gentle, playful mood.

The sugar grove beside the road appears to have been designed for Harvest Home purposes. It was a long time before this fact was discovered, and like most great discoveries there are several claimants for the honor. However, in this case it has been narrowed down until it lies between Williams and Donaldson, although the owner of the sweet timber patch, Mr. Orr, claims to have pointed out its advantages as a summer resort long before Jim Williams thought of a Harvest Home.

Just here Donaldson nebs in and says he saw it first, but said nothing about it, and rather than have any fuss over it he is willing to share the honor with Neighbor Williams, provided he takes all the bother of it. So it is that he signs himself secretary. The bother might be great to Neighbors Donaldson or Orr, but Neighbor James is not losing any flesh on account of it.

* * * * *

This being an off year, the place wasn't overrun with politicians. As far as known there wasn't a candidate on the ground, and no baby kissing or other sign of their activity was reported up to a late hour.

Of course, the redoubtable Maj. McDowell was there. He always is. In fact, as clerk of the lower house of congress, he feels it his bounden duty to be there, as does his neighbor and fellow laborer in Washington, Harry Robinson, disbursing officer and general good fellow. The major is one of the pillars of the Jackson Center Home, his chief contribution towards its support being his annual oration. Secretary Williams says if he doesn't get a new one, or polish the old one up a little, he may waken up some fine morning to find himself out of a job. Robinson says the major has a lot of good ones, but they are hardly fit for Harvest Home purposes. But, then, the neighbors all know him, and are glad to have him there, speech or no speech.

The fact of the matter is that everybody comes prepared to speak, and when they find they are not on the list they just make up a little crowd and speak anyhow. This sort o' takes the nerve out of the orator, particularly if he is raw at the business and thinks he is some pumpkins. But the old timers like McDowell, Judge Miller, Henry Hall, Judge Wallace and others like unto them, of whom there are many in the regions round about Mercer, who don't have to practice oratory in the barn, or out in some secluded spot, nor even rehearse before a looking-glass—these don't mind bucking up against a ball game, a copenhagen ring or a brass band or two.

And what a lot of good people there are up in that beautiful and bountiful county; and good-looking, too, and healthy, wholesome and heartsome. One could hardly help wondering where they all sprung from, but there they were, plain to be seen and heard.

Five hundred rigs lined the fences and filled all available nooks and corners. Five thousand people gathered in the generous shade of hundreds of fine sugar maple trees, and heaven smiled a welcome such as only heaven can give. But the welcome extended by the home folks to old neighbors and friends, and to strangers, was a good second, to say the least.

Baskets, baskets everywhere, and filled with stuff to eat—more than the multitude could eat. Seemed like there was as much to eat when done as when begun. And as for drink, there was plenty and to spare, and of a sort that cheered and sustained and drove headaches away. "Charm" Braunum of Pittsburgh has charged himself with the highly responsible and very ticklish duty of furnishing coffee for these occasions, and it is his boast that he knows coffee from stump water; also, that he knows the coffee tastes of the people up there as well as they do themselves. Indeed, he claims to have developed and cultivated their tastes to suit the brand of coffee he had to sell, and the sheriff of the county says the coffee might have been a whole lot worse and still not as bad as some he has encountered.

The women folks up there surely know how to make good pies. And they may know how to make bad ones, too, but if they do they neglected to advertise the fact on this occasion. Anyway, what sense is there in making poor pies when it is just as easy and as cheap to make good ones?

* * * * *

Sugar tree land, you know—that is, if you know land when you see it—is about the best there is, and when the best land is there you will find the best people, which is right and proper. A man possessed of good common sense is liable to know a good thing when he sees it; also, to get next, if he wants it, and to stick to it. Hence the presence of so many old families in sections where the land is good and lays well.

One reason that so many sugar trees are left standing on good, rich farming land throughout a very large part of Western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio is that the people don't like to destroy them, for it seems too much like destroying old friendships and breaking up pleasant relations—same as George P. Morris felt when he wrote:

"Woodman, spare that tree!
Touch not a single bough!
In youth it sheltered me,
And I'll protect it now."

* * * * *

But to get back to the Harvest Home again. The bands had been playing tune about, and President Orr and Secretary Williams, with their aids and messengers, had been scurrying around trying to bunch the speaking talent, when Maj. McDowell hove in sight. His presence was a signal for all hands to get busy, and President Orr trotted him out to show the boys how to do it, and he did. He made a speech that fit the occasion as snugly as the paper on the wall.

At the close of his address the major introduced the Quiet Observer, who had gone to the Harvest Home mainly for the purpose of collecting facts and figures with which to knock out and forever settle the report that the country girl is deteriorating and becoming so scarce that the very life of the nation is in danger. There was no trouble in getting such facts and figures in abundance, and the presence of the girl herself was right there to prove the report false, as well as silly.

The Rev. U. S. McMillan of Louisville, Ky., who is back home again, followed in an address such as a loyal son should make on an occasion like this.

The bands played, other loyal sons spoke, the bands played some more, and then the president said it was about time for the Pittsburgh train, which meant adieu to Jackson Center for a time. May it not be long.

Talked of in New York

GEORGE C. JENKS.

(By Private Wire to The Gazette.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Many New Yorkers departed for Oyster Bay this afternoon and evening. The principal attraction there will be the review of the North Atlantic fleet by President Roosevelt. The president himself is attraction enough for many loyal Americans, but when he arranges to inspect 12 of the largest vessels in the North Atlantic squadron, as he has now, the average New Yorker who has a little spare time feels it his duty to be present. To be there in time it is necessary to leave New York tonight. The ceremonies at Oyster Bay will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning and the president is famous for his punctuality. Besides, it is the way of naval officers to be ready at the time set for anything in the way of official duties. This means that at 9 o'clock the gun which will announce the beginning of the inspection will be fired promptly, and the president will be on board the Mayflower ready to see the ships steam by. The ordinary citizen who goes down to see the review will have to make his own arrangements. The whole affair is official, and it will be an occasion when the average man must take care of himself.

Armstrong Is "It" Now.

Passes to the government cutters to see the international cup race are signed by R. B. Armstrong, first assistant secretary of the treasury. The last time the race took place Mr. Armstrong was a newspaper correspondent, and received the same kind of tickets that he sent out on Saturday to his old colleagues.

Big Bill's "Blow Out."

"Big Bill" Devery's picnic for the poor tomorrow is expected to be the biggest blowout Manhattan ever has seen. The ex-chief will pay all the bills, and he does not care how big they are, either. The celebration will be at Harlem River park, a sort of glorified beer garden far up town. Devery will have stages going backward and forward all day for the use of cripples and women with children. Other visitors must use the street cars or "L." Women and children will have everything free, but men must pay 25 cents apiece, the money to be used for coal for poor folk next winter. Devery came into town from his home at Rockaway yesterday to complete arrangements, and everything is primed now, ready to be touched off at a moment's notice tomorrow morning. Devery has enemies, but not many nowadays. It is admitted that he is a good friend of poor people, and that with his bulldozing manner he carries a big heart. We all know what the mantle of charity does in covering sins.

Their Private Schooners.

A German saloonkeeper in one of the cross streets near upper Broadway has hit on a new idea for attracting and keeping patrons. For each person who drops in frequently for a glass of beer he has a handsome glass etched with the name of the customer. This glass is kept in a row with others behind the bar, and whenever the owner of the glass comes in he is served with his beer in it. There are nearly 50 of these glasses duly inscribed with names on their shelf behind the bar, although the saloon has been opened only a short time. Their name on a glass appeals to a great many men, and the business of the place is increasing so fast that other saloonkeepers are sure to copy the idea. It will not be long before frequenters of Tenderloin saloons will ask for their own glass, just as men demand their own cup in a barber shop.

Stuck in the Mud.

That great 90-ton column for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine on Morningside Heights has not been carried to its destination yet. The weight is so great that the truck on which it rests can be moved only by steampower, and the machinery has not yet arrived. Meanwhile the wheels of the truck are sinking deeper and deeper into the mud, so that, if something is not done soon, there will be an engineering problem too much for the average truckman.

St. Rocco Fireproof.

In spite of the fire that destroyed the large altar in "Little Italy," at Broome and Elizabeth street yesterday, the feast of St. Rocco was celebrated today with due eclat. The whole district is decorated with flags and draperies, and the women are in their bright-colored best clothing, while most of the men have gay handkerchiefs about their necks. Altogether dingy old Elizabeth street hardly knows herself. It is only on the occasion of some great church anniversary that she comes out in gala attire, but when she does, there is no mistake about it.

Comfort and Style Together.

Straw hats and Tuxedos have been a common combination in New York this summer. Many men like the bob-tailed dinner coat, but do not care to wear an opera hat with it. Fashion declares that a straw sailor is en regle with anything. It must be confessed, however, that a wide-backed Tuxedo and a flat hat, on a fat man, is something to make the angels weep.

Strap Your Razor and Shave Away.

Barbers in this state must register and pay the proper fee before they will be allowed to continue the practice of their profession. The new law is to protect competent barbers, as well as the public. Every barber must swear that he has been in the business three years before he can receive a license card. Since the books opened, on July 15, about 15,000 barbers have registered in eight counties, including New York, Kings and Queens, covering Greater New York and the suburbs. It is expected that the stringent regulations for the government of tonsorial artists will drive many incompetents out of the business, for there is a penalty of $25 fine and imprisonment from three to ten months for men working without a card.

Crabs for the Catching.

A sport that is flourishing in this neighborhood just now is crab catching. It is pursued in salt water swamps, and the Jersey meadows are an ideal crab-fishing ground. Hundreds of young men were out today in the meadows, and there were deviled crabs for supper tonight in many families which do not often enjoy that luxury.

Kentucky Justice.

Civilization is making its way even into Breathitt county, Kentucky. Jett and White, who murdered J. B. Marcum on the court house steps, have been convicted and condemned to imprisonment for life. It is true that Breathitt county did not accomplish this feat itself. After a jury of the vicinage had failed to agree the case had to be taken elsewhere, but that does not alter the fact that the law has proved itself stronger than the rifles of the feudists. The fate of Jett and White will check the trigger finger of many a would-be assassin.

If the murderers of Marcum had been shot in their turn, as everybody expected them to be, the normal course of things in Breathitt county would not have been disturbed. One shooting would have followed another until one side or the other had been exterminated. But two of the leaders of the cutthroat chivalry picking oakum in striped suits for the rest of their natural lives—that is a different matter. It chills the bloodthirsty impulse to go out and kill somebody.—New York World.

+ + + +

Jett and White, two of the murderers of James Marcum, have for the second time escaped the gallows, one man out of the 12 jurors in both trials preventing the imposition of the just penalty of Jett's crime. Such is the outcome of the defense's extraordinary efforts in behalf of those two assassins; such the utmost that could be accomplished by the Hargis gang, until recently all powerful in Breathitt county. It is a shame that they could accomplish so much, yet it is some cause for satisfaction that they could not accomplish more. It was almost too much to hope that this band of lawless men, fighting for the lives of Jett and White with all the desperation of self-protection, could not get a Jasper King on the Cynthiana jury as they got a Burns Fitzpatrick on the Jackson jury. * * * The verdict, while not what it should have been, and would have been if there had been no Jasper King on the jury, is yet encouraging, under all the circumstances, to the law-respecting citizens of Kentucky. It is the beginning of the end of Hargisism.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

+ + + +

Justice has so firmly acquired the habit of nodding in Kentucky that it is by no means surprising to learn that Jett and White, the assassins of Marcum in Breathitt county, have been convicted of murder and sentenced to imprisonment for life. Viewed in the light of the dispatches there seemed absolutely no doubt whatever of the guilt of those men. Theirs was a most atrocious crime, the slaughter of a respected citizen in the very precincts of the court. There was little or no attempt at concealment. The men were known to be the familiars of a county judge whose entourage included several desperate characters and whose record for the deadliness of his enmity was well known to all. One of the accused was his nephew. This judge had a close political relationship with the chief executive of the state and had secured thereby the pardon of several of his cronies who had fallen under the ban of the law.

Thus the issue in the case was not just whether the men accused of the murder of Marcum would be convicted or acquitted, but whether, being convicted, they would be sentenced to pay the death penalty or to suffer life imprisonment. The jury, in the full light of the well-known fact of an influence with the governor on the part of the best friend of the accused, sufficient to procure pardons for them, has elected to punish them in the minor degree. Taking into account all of the happenings in this section of Kentucky during the past few months, the assassination of citizens, the intimidation of witnesses, the burning of property as a means of enforcing threats, the open defiance of the powers of the court, the summoning of militia forces to guard the judges, jurymen and witnesses from violence, this verdict promises but poorly for the maintenance of public order and the protection of life.—Washington Star.

+ + + +

It is too much to hope that the triumph of justice in this case will end the era of feuds in darkest Kentucky, but it is something merely to have the law vindicated for once. A county in which some 30 feud murders have been committed with impunity within a few months needs just such a lesson, and it is to be regretted that the squeamishness of one juror has made the still more salutary example of a hanging impossible. Possibly the "feudists" will take the hint.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

+ + + +

There may be a disposition out of Kentucky to indulge in surprise and regret that the jury was in any degree in doubt as to the guilt of the accused persons. They manifestly believed that Jett and White were the murderers of Marcum, but not such murderers that they deserved to die for the crime they had committed. But the disposition to be critical because in the state in which crimes committed in maintaining a feud are not universally denounced a verdict inconsistent with the testimony is obtained is in large measure overcome by the feeling of satisfaction supplied by the giving of any verdict at all. The effect in Breathitt county may not at once be effectual in stopping assassination or arson as methods of expressing disapproval of neighbors toward whom by a sort of savage hill etiquette you are required to be hostile, but the absence of Jett and White, and the knowledge that they have gone to Frankfort to slave in disgrace behind prison walls for the rest of their lives are facts apt to be impressive and deterrent.—New York Times.

+ + + +

The conviction of Curtis Jett and Thomas White at Cynthiana, Ky., for the murder of James B. Marcum is to a certain degree encouraging. It shows that even in that feud-ridden region of Kentucky a jury can be obtained that is not afraid to convict and that some respect is still felt there for the law. To this degree the verdict is reassuring.

But this is all the satisfaction the result will bring. The evidence fully justified a verdict of murder in the first degree, the penalty for which is death on the scaffold. No more direct testimony could be given as to the guilt of accused persons than was offered against Jett and White. It was clear and circumstantial and no serious effort was made to break it down. The argument on a verdict more lenient than that prescribed for murder in the first degree was a concession to the lawless spirit which prevails in Kentucky and to the family influence of the accused men.—Philadelphia Press.

"Uncle Russell."

The wasteful "bulls" and "bears" of Wall street, who generally live fast and exhaust their capital of cash and vitality in self-indulgence, are fond of jeering at "Uncle Russell" and calling him "miser" and other opprobrious names. The "accommodation" he affords them when in a "deal" fails to excite their gratitude, especially since they know he always gets back his money with good interest, while they often lose theirs. They are hardly just. If they but imitated their "uncle's" moderation they might hope, perhaps, to live and prosper as long as he. Whatever may be said of Mr. Sage's strong grip on the dollar, the figure of his last birthday clearly demonstrates the excellence of some points of his character.—Baltimore Sun.

SEVENTH STREET BRIDGE WAS NEVER IN DANGER, SAYS MR. LINDENTHAL

Famous Engineer Replies to New York Critics of Structure Across the Allegheny.

EYE-BAR SYSTEM IS DEFENDED

Movement of Anchorage at One End Due to an Old Sewer—Defect Was Promptly Remedied—Wire Cables Would Have Caused Same Result.

Eye-bar construction of bridges intended for heavy street traffic are upheld by Gustav Lindenthal, who specified that form of construction for the new bridge across the East river at New York and was promptly called to time. The matter has been thoroughly investigated, and now Mr. Lindenthal, who built the Seventh street bridge across the Allegheny river, has written the history of that bridge to prove that eye-bar construction is about as perfect as any. His article appears in the current issue of the Engineering News, and is in rebuttal of the attack of the bridge commissioners of New York on his, and also an answer to G. C. Henning, a well-known bridge engineer, who stated that the Seventh street bridge is unsafe.

Mr. Lindenthal, in writing of the bridge, which was built in 1884, says in part:

> It will be observed that the stiffening in this bridge is obtained by inserting a triangular web bracing between the top and bottom chains, making of it a suspended arch bridge. A peculiarity of this bridge is that it has no web members or suspenders adjustable in length.
> The bridge was computed and designed for ordinary street traffic. The succession of two suspended main spans precludes its adaptability for heavy concentrated loads, for which it was not intended. It is true that a few years after its completion signs of movement were discovered in the Allegheny anchorage. The cause for this was readily ascertained. The anchorage straddled an old deep sewer, which had become leaky. As soon as discovered repairs were made.
> The anchorage on the Pittsburgh side has never moved a hair's breadth. Since the repairs were made the bridge is in as good condition as ever before, under a steadily increasing street traffic. The design fully justifies the expectations as to rigidity. The chains are apart 1-32 of the span, which would correspond, for instance, to stiffening trusses in the Brooklyn bridge, about 50 feet high in place of the present 18 feet high. A peculiarity of the design will be noticed in that on the Allegheny side the chains are carried through a truss about 80 feet long, of the same height as the suspended cable arches. The top and bottom chord in this truss are also composed of eye-bars. Compression occurs some times in the end panels of the top chord. There the eye-bars are braced with cast iron separators.
> The statement that the bridge was at any time in danger of collapsing is not true. Mr. Henning's connection with the bridge was simply that of an inspector of the iron work at the bridge shops, where the superstructure for the bridge was manufactured. Of course the accident to the anchorage of the bridge would have happened just the same if there had been wire cables instead of the chain of eye-bars.
> It does not seem to me necessary to reply to the rest of the article, except perhaps to suggest that engineers, here and abroad, will wonder how it was possible for the thousands of eye-bar bridges built in the last 30 years not to have collapsed long before this time. If the opinion of Mr. Henning is correct the bridge shops in this country had better close their eye-bar plants forthwith and cease to impose their dangerous structures on an unsuspecting and confiding public.

KNOWN IN NEW CASTLE.

James A. McPhilliamy Was Once Convicted of Safe-Cracking There.

James A. McPhilliamy, who is at the workhouse for robbing paupers at the city poor farm, and also the officers, is well known in New Castle. He [illegible] number of pals robbed the county treasury office at New Castle in the early eighties, securing about $200 after cracking the safe. McPhilliamy and two others were captured, convicted and sent to the Western penitentiary.

When arrested for this robbery, plans for robbing the New Castle postoffice, the First National bank and the office of City Treasurer John Blevins were found on his person. When Blevins was murdered some time afterward, these plans were remembered and McPhilliamy was locked up. It was found he had nothing to do with the murder, as he was at that time at Marshalsea, Pittsburgh.

PERSONALS

Almost as many people left Pittsburgh on the railroad excursions yesterday as came in on the trains to visit the city. Ticket sellers, gatemen and porters about the railroad stations were kept on the hustle all day and the stations were unusual scenes of activity till late in the evening. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad excursion trains took 1,741 people to the nearby summer resorts and towns and brought 1,768 people to the city. One of the best excursions run this summer by the Baltimore & Ohio was from Canova, O., directly across the Ohio river from Lexington, Ky. The trains carried 600 excursionists and left Canova at 8:15 Saturday night, arriving in Pittsburgh at 8:30 and 8:55 yesterday morning. Although the excursionists rode all night Saturday and spent yesterday looking over the city, the prospect of another night's ride to reach home did not seem to dismay them. As usual on the big excursions quite a number of women missed their train and helped to liven up matters at the station in their efforts to learn from the officials how they were to get home on excursion tickets. The fare from Canova to Pittsburgh and return was only $2.50. The number of excursionists was as follows: From Sistersville, O., 738; Connellsville, Pa., and Morgantown, W. Va., 430, and Canova, O., 600. The outbound trains took 1,075 to Wheeling, W. Va.; 310 to Cumberland, Md., and 256 to Ohio Pyle.

Many priests connected with local Catholic churches went out last night over the Pennsylvania railroad. They will spend their summer vacations at points between this city and the coast. Among the number was the Rev. Father Lawrence A. O'Connell, assistant pastor at the Epiphany Roman Catholic church in Washington street. Father O'Connell will stop over at Atlantic City a few days and then go to Ocean City, N. J., to visit a former school mate who is pastor of the Catholic church in Ocean City.

Former Lieut. Gov. Walter Lyon of Sewickley and family last evening left on the 10 o'clock train over the Pennsylvania railroad for Atlantic City, where they will spend 10 days.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES

Director Clark Desires to Erect Suitable Building on the Poor Farm at Marshalsea.

HE SAYS IT IS BADLY NEEDED

New Insane Asylum Is to Be Occupied After September First — Inmates of the Home Do Not Care Much About Work.

Director James W. Clark is hopeful that the city will next year authorize the erection of a hospital for consumptives at Marshalsea. At present he is not prepared to go into details as to size of the building or its cost.

As to the necessity for a hospital for consumptives to be owned by the city, the director is not in doubt. Dozens of people afflicted with this disease are annually sent to Marshalsea. They have to be placed in the same quarters with the other patients. Director Clark is convinced that it would be better for the consumptives and more healthful in every way to have separate quarters.

Contracts for furnishing the new building for the insane have been let. The furnishings are to be delivered about September 1 and will cost between $10,000 and $11,000. The structure will accommodate about 250 patients. The present asylum is badly overcrowded, but there will be sufficient room when the new building is ready for occupancy. It is considered the model asylum of the country, and the authorities of the Polk Institution for feeble-minded children have decided to erect a duplicate of it.

Director Clark is finding work on the farm for all the inmates who are able to do any labor. The insane take to it kindly and are glad of the opportunity to get into the open air. This is not true of those in the home department. At present these inmates are being worked on some new roads being built on the farm.

"They do pretty well until about 11:30 in the morning," said the director, "and then they quit for dinner. After the meal they object to labor, preferring to spend the afternoon in rest. As soon as dinner is over they disappear, and it is difficult to get them back to the work on the roads."

Monthly entertainments are being given at the home. In July a minstrel show was put on. This month there was a picnic, and on September 4 Director Clark is arranging for a number of vaudeville performers. All of the inmates save the violently insane are allowed to attend, and it does them a great deal of good. During the winter the stereopticon is to be utilized in furnishing amusement.

INJURED MAN IN A STABLE.

Four Days With Broken Ribs Before Receiving Medical Treatment.

After lying in McCue's stables in Shingiss street for almost four days, with his ribs broken, Patrick Murphy, a riverman, was removed to the Homeopathic hospital yesterday afternoon. His condition is serious on account of the delay in receiving medical attention.

On Thursday evening Murphy went into the stable and asked for a place to sleep. He was sent to the hay loft and while climbing up the ladder made a misstep and fell to the floor. He was unable to again ascend the ladder and crawled into a stall near the rear of the stable, where he lay until Friday. He was then found, but said he was not injured. Murphy's condition finally became so bad that he was sent to the hospital, where it was found some of his ribs had been fractured.

Murphy last worked on the steamer Cherokee between Pittsburgh and Brownsville.

STRIKE LEVIES.

Bridge Men Vote to Raise Emergency Fund for Locals in Distress.

By a special vote of the 1,800 members of Local No. 3, International association of Bridge and Structural Iron workers, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at No. 510 Wylie avenue, it was decided to assess each member 50 cents for the relief of five locals now conducting strikes. All of the locals of the international were ordered to do this some time ago, but it was considered somewhat out of the ordinary and a special meeting was necessary before the levy could be made.

Three locals to be helped are composed of inside structural iron workers and two of outside men. It was said that the question of a sympathetic strike had not been discussed.

HUMP IS NOT SUCH A BUGABOO

The Director Reminds Alarmists That Stretch to Be Improved Is but 1,000 Feet.

MANY RELEASES ARE SIGNED

Figures on Hump Removal Are Practically Complete—Filtration Estimates Are Ready, but Director Will Go Over Them With the Engineers.

Before the end of the week the public will know officially what the cost of a sand filtration plant, based on the present plans, will cost for the entire city, the South Side included, and what the cost of the removal of the Fifth avenue hump will be. The engineers of Director Edward M. Bigelow's department have prepared estimates of both improvements.

Regarding the removal of the hump, Director Bigelow yesterday refused to tell what the engineers say the cost will be. The estimates were prepared some time ago, and there has been no variation in the figure since then, except that the cost of labor may have increased somewhat.

The director was asked what he thought of several published unofficial estimates placing the cost at several million dollars for the removal of the hump and for the payment of damages to property owners whose buildings may be injured by the cut.

"There is nothing in that," he said. "People should remember that the whole stretch of street to be improved is only 1,000 feet. They should also remember that nearly all the largest property owners have signed a release exonerating the city from damages. The cathedral formerly stood in the way of removing the hump, but I anticipate no trouble from that source now. I hope to be able to furnish the figures on the hump removal before the week is over, but I cannot do it before it is known exactly what property owners will sign releases."

The director smiled when asked whether a bond issue would be necessary, apparently thinking that if he answered that question directly he would disclose the figures of the cost, which he has steadily refused to give until he has laid the figures before the mayor.

"I can tell you one thing, though," he said, "and that is that the city will have to pay the entire cost, for that is the law. The law is that in case of a re-improvement the city must pay all the expense."

"Then benefits cannot be assessed on property owners benefited?"

"They can not."

"But the city has to pay all damages?"

"Yes."

The director as firmly refused to say what his engineers had estimated as the cost of a sand filtration plant for the entire city. He did say that he expected to give that information to the councilmanic joint committee on filtration about Wednesday. He will go over the estimates with the engineers today and he will then inform Dr. John P. Sterrett, chairman of the committee, when he will be ready.

The director was asked if he knew anything of the proposed amendments to the Duquesne way franchise ordinance, but he waved his hand deprecatingly, saying that that subject was resting now, and he, for one, would not revive it at the present time. The regular meeting of select council will be held on September 15, when the ordinance will be taken up.

RAISING A BRIDGE.

Herrs Island Protected from Fire During Progress of the Work.

The West Penn Railroad Company yesterday began the work of raising the bridge from East Ohio street to Herrs island above the elevated tracks of the West Penn road.

Before the work was started the assistant fire chief of Allegheny had a fire engine and a lot of hose placed on Herrs island in case of a fire there while the bridge is being raised. The Pittsburgh fire department has been asked to assist the Allegheny department in case of a fire on the island while the bridge raising is going on.

sale—fine china

New York's biggest importer's sample line—several thousand dollars' worth—and this being a sample line—that was bought out to take orders on from stores and shops that only sell the finest China and Art Pottery, the goods are artistic and variety very extensive.

August is a dull month everywhere in China and Art Pottery—and it was a great opportunity when this importer wanted to sell us this stock—and we embraced the opportunity.

It's the largest and best deal in Dresden, French and Holland China small and medium size art pieces the store ever made since we've been in the china business.

Artistic pieces, table and toilet articles, and choice cabinet pieces—novelties—useful and ornamental.

Fine French China less than Half Price—15c to $5.00 for 35c to $10.00 pieces.

Dresden China from the celebrated Hirsch factory, 50c to $7.50 for $1.00 to $15.00 pieces.

The "Old Dutch" pottery and useful fancy pieces from Zuid, Holland, comprises many quaint shapes, and the prices are remarkable, 50c to $5.00 for $1.25 to $10.00 pieces.

This is a sale of such variety and beauty and so interesting from a price standpoint every woman will be interested—and men, too, to give as presents to the women folk—and lots of pieces suitable for den decoration—particularly the "Old Dutch" curios.

THREE THOUSAND HEAR ROOSEVELT

President Preaches Good Citizenship From Hilltop at Oyster Bay.

AUDIENCE FROM NEW YORK

Members of the Catholic Society of the Holy Name Stand Bareheaded in Drizzling Rain—His Talk is Vigorous and Characteristic.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Three thousand members of the Holy Name society of Brooklyn stood with uncovered heads in a fine drizzle of rain for half an hour this afternoon and listened to President Roosevelt. The president preached the doctrine of vigorous Christianity and his words seemed to appeal with particular force to the great crowd of brawny workingmen who composed his audience.

At 3:30 o'clock a dense crowd surrounded three sides of the speaker's pavilion which had been erected on the crest of the hill, the various branches being identified by the flags and banners. Inspector McCluskey and a squad and central office detectives were on hand, and the force of secret service men was augmented by most of the New York detail.

The occasion had no special significance, the chief object of the visiting religionists being to pay their respects to the head of the nation. The consent of the president to address the members of the society was obtained some time ago, but owing to the death of Pope Leo, the gathering was postponed until today.

The president was warmly received. His entry was acclaimed by the playing of "Hail to the Chief," and before he began his address the band played "America" and the whole audience sang "Holy God."

President is Introduced.

In introducing the president Father Power said: "This is a great day for the Holy Name society in its calendar of glory. It is a magnificent sight to see so many men gathered to honor the holy name of Jesus. Well may we Catholics feel proud today of our religion, our faith and our diocese. May our society increase in numbers and power is our earnest prayer."

In the course of his address the president took occasion once more to reiterate his doctrine that not by preaching, but by practice, must a man be judged.

"I am glad to see such a society flourishing as yours has flourished," he said, "because the public welfare depends on the way in which we can combine in our young men decency and strength."

"To be a good citizen," the president said, "one must first be a good man. I am not addressing weaklings. I should not have taken the trouble to come and address such; but strong, vigorous men, who are engaged in the hard work of life, and therefore men who will count for good or evil. And it is peculiarly incumbent upon you who have strength to set a right example for others.

"I want you to remember that you cannot retain your self-respect if you are loose and foul of tongue. The man who is to lead a clean and honest life must inevitably suffer if his speech is likewise not clean and honorable. I don't expect you to be perfect, but I do expect an honest effort at being clean in word and thought and deed.

Strength and Morality.

"Our whole effort should be to effect a combination of the strong qualities with what we call the virtues. I don't want to see Christianity professed only by weaklings. The desire in this country is that the decent man shall be strong and the strong man be decent."

"I ask that every man here," he said, "constitute himself his brother's keeper by setting an example for the younger brother, which will prevent his getting so false an example of life. Boys will not admire the virtues of the anaemic type. They admire those who have the quality of being brave and facing life as it should be faced and if you are to be effective as good Christians you must have strength and courage or your example will count for little.

"Finally, in the last analysis, the whole future of the state depends upon a man having that mixture of strength and honesty which make in their sum total what we call good citizenship."

MOTORMAN STRUCK BOY.

Crowd Yelled "Lynch Him," and Policeman Arrested Disturbers.

Philip Carey, a motorman of No. 1105 Sarah street, yesterday afternoon at Eleventh street and Liberty avenue got into an altercation with Louis Forte, aged 14 years, and, it is alleged, struck him over the head with a switch iron.

The fight attracted a crowd and when it became known that the motorman had hit the little fellow there were cries of "lynch him."

Officer C. R. Thompson interfered and took both to Central police station, where they were lodged as disorderly persons.

DESTRUCTION BY LIGHTNING IN WASHINGTON COUNTY

WASHINGTON, PA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—A destructive storm passed over Washington county early this morning. Near Buffalo, a barn on the M. Kerr farm was struck and burned with its contents. The loss is $1,000. The barn was stored with grain and hay and a full line of harvesting machinery. There was no insurance. Oil derricks on the E. D. Prigg and R. Knox farms, west of town, were struck and burned to the ground. A cow standing in the open field and a horse belonging to Calvin Patterson, were killed.

Gas Killed Two in Hotel.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Aug. 16.—The odor of escaping gas led to the discovery of the dead bodies of a man and a woman in a hotel here today. A gas jet in the room was turned on and it was evident that their death was due to asphyxiation. The bodies have not been identified.

Roundheads to Hold Reunion.

HOTELS CROWDED AT THE SEASHORE

Many Visitors to Atlantic City Have Trouble Finding Accommodations.

PITTSBURGHERS CARED FOR

Gazette Bureau Service Placed at Disposal of Many Callers Whose Wants Are Attended to Quickly—Boardwalk a Mass of Humanity.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Young's Ocean Pier,
ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 16.

The annual crush is on in Atlantic City. It started Friday morning when the excursion trains began to arrive from Pittsburgh, and it has grown until tonight, when rooms in all of the hotels between Atlantic avenue and the beach are at a premium. Hundreds of people will spend the night on cots in the basements of the hotels, where the help is usually quartered. Some of the hotelkeepers sent their help and families to lodging houses in the back part of the city to provide more room for the crowds of people who besiege their desks.

Tonight the boardwalk is a denes mass of people, all of the piers are full and the cafes are overflowing. The police say that there are still some people in the city who have not found accommodations, but as fast as they apply at the police station they will be sent to boarding houses in Arctic and Baltic avenues.

No visitor from Pittsburgh or Western Pennsylvania who applied to The Gazette bureau for accommodations was sent away without being placed in a first-class hotel. This was done in the face of the fact that all of the hotels were turning people away. The Gazette had in this matter the co-operation of the proprietors of several hotels, who on Friday morning each placed several rooms at the disposal of The Gazette for the accommodation of its readers. Another and more extensive arrangement has been made with the hotels for reservations for Pittsburghers who come here on the excursion leaving Pittsburgh next Thursday.

The crush will end tomorrow, as fully 10,000 people who are here from Philadelphia and New York and other nearby places will leave for their homes. Tonight a dozen hotels notified The Gazette bureau that after tomorrow morning they could accommodate from five to a dozen persons each. Pittsburghers intending to come to Atlantic City can make free use of The Gazette bureau in the matter of securing hotel accommodations.

No Rescues Were Necessary.

This was the first Sunday of the season that there were no rescues reported from the surf. It was not because there were no bathers, for the sea for the entire length of the bathing grounds, from the dry sand to 200 or 300 feet out was black with people. The sea, however, was unusually calm and the daring ones who swam out beyond the line of breakers were not caught in the currents that are dangerous when the sea is rough.

Plaint of Patrolmen.

Patrolmen say that the general public seems to take them for lost and found bureaus and that they could easily occupy their whole time in hunting for the numerous small articles which are lost by the promenaders. One policeman said he would be compelled to get a book in which to keep the list of lost articles which are reported to him, as his head could not contain the varied list. All of the men on the boardwalk are good-natured souls and they are perfectly willing to sympathize with losers of shawls, small articles of jewelry and other things, and to make efforts to recover the missing trinkets. Once in a while, however, they run across people who try their patience and make them think that efforts to be accommodating are hardly worth while. One of these instances occurred during the past week when a "copper" on an uptown beat was asked to look for a shawl which a woman visitor from New York had dropped on her way home from one of the piers. The officer made diligent inquiry for the lost shawl, but did not find it. The next day the woman met the policeman, and instead of thanking him for the efforts which he had made, berated him in loud and strong terms for what she termed lack of attention to his duty. The copper tried his best to explain that the business of recovering lost articles was not directly in line with the rules of the police department and that work in that line was only a matter of courtesy, but the woman refused to listen to him, and left threatening to lay the matter before the mayor.

SHOT AT A PANTHER; WOUNDED HIS HORSE

Bedford County Man Has Thrilling Experience in the Mountains.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ALTOONA, PA., Aug. 16.—While George Cunningham, a Bedford county truckman, was returning from the Altoona market, early this morning, a full grown panther leaped from a tree along the mountain road and landed on the back of one of his horses. The panther was evidently frenzied with hunger, for it immediately began gnawing at the neck of the horse.

Cunningham, nervous from fright, seized his revolver and fired at the beast on his horse's back. In his excitement he missed the panther, but shot his horse in the head. The horse fell in its tracks and the panther escaped to the forest. However, the horse was only stunned and Cunningham was able to get it on its feet and proceed home.

This is the fourth panther seen on the mountain roads during the summer. Bears are also plentiful, while wildcats and catamounts are seen almost daily by the teamsters using the lonely mountain trails.

AUSTRIAN PEDDLERS WOUNDED AND ROBBED

WASHINGTON, PA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—A holdup occurred in the vicinity of West Middletown last night. Two Austrian peddlers were attacked by two negroes, who fell upon them and shot and clubbed them into insensibility. The negroes escaped. The wounded men were found by farmers and carried to West Middletown. One of the men had been shot through the stomach and hip, while the other was shot through an arm and otherwise badly injured. Both were sent to a hospital at Steubenville, O.

M'KEES ROCKS MAN IS FATALLY WOUNDED

Was With Woman Whose Husband is Said to Have Done the Shooting.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CUMBERLAND, MD., Aug. 16.—Harmon Englehart of McKees Rocks, aged 24, a tin worker, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded tonight, it is alleged, by Thomas Jones, a puddler, who is working at McKeesport, and has been home on a visit of a few days. Englehart, who is unmarried, is said to have been attentive to Mrs. Jones, and the husband's suspicions have been aroused for some time. He had been watching his home.

He met Englehart and Mrs. Jones on the street in South Cumberland. He angrily addressed his wife: "I've told you several times to keep away from this man." He then struck Englehart on the head with some instrument, knocking him down, it is alleged, and shot at him four times, but only one bullet took effect and that in the back. He then beat Englehart on the head, it is alleged, with the revolver, making four gashes. He turned and said to Mrs. Jones: "Now you've forced me to kill this man."

Jones was placed under arrest. Englehart formerly lived here. His father is at McKees Rocks.

SOUTH SIDE OFFICERS HURT.

Acting Sergeant Fallon and Policeman Thomas Harvey Are Off Duty.

Policeman James Fallon, acting sergeant at No. 7 police station, was badly injured while attempting to board a trolley car at Carson and South Fourth streets late yesterday afternoon. He missed his footing, was thrown to the ground and dragged about 50 feet. He was picked up and taken home in a bruised condition.

Policeman Thomas Harvey of the South Side station was off duty last night suffering with a bruised knee cap. The policeman fell on Saturday night in South Sixth street while arresting two brothers, Stanley and John Poloski, who were engaged in a fight.

Brakeman Injured in Wreck.

BUTLER, PA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—A Baltimore & Ohio freight train crashed into the rear end of the midnight passenger train from Allegheny after it had pulled into the station at Butler. A combination baggage and passenger coach was demolished. The passengers had left the train. John Cowden, a brakeman on the freight, had his left leg broken.

Rev. Walter D. Trumbull.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Rev. Walter D. Trumbull of Mantua, O., who recently accepted a unanimous call from the East Long avenue Christian church of this city, has arrived and assumed the duties of his new pastorate. He graduated from Hiram college six years ago, and was pastor of the Christian church at Hartford, Trumbull county, until he went to Mantua three years ago. In June he completed a post graduate course at Hiram college, when he received the degree of master of arts.

Nearly Frozen to Death While Sampling Beer.

BEAVER, PA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—William C. Johnston was almost frozen to death in a big refrigerator in the meat shop of Goll Bros., in West Bridgewater yesterday. The accidental opening of the ice box by John Goll, who was exhibiting it to a friend, released Johnston, who was just losing consciousness after two hours' confinement in the frigid temperature.

Johnston had noticed a case of beer in the refrigerator and had gone in and sampled a bottle. While thus engaged Mr. Goll slammed the door, thinking he had carelessly left it open. Johnston was kept alive by consuming the entire case of beer.

THE DEATH ROLL

A. H. Morse.

A. H. Morse, aged 92, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Nicholas Iseman of Kiskiminetas Junction, Pa. He was born in Peacham Town, Vt. When 21 years old he came to Pittsburgh. His first work was helping to string the telegraph wire between Pittsburgh and Baltimore. He was burned out of business in the big fire in Pittsburgh in 1845. He married Miss Agnes Girt of Third street, Pittsburgh, 51 years ago and moved to Freeport, where he lived the rest of his life. He was a canal boatman for many years and an invitation just reached him to attend the annual Old Canal Boatmen's reunion at Johnstown September 3. He is survived by five children: Mrs. Ellen Iseman and Mrs. Maggie Ross of Kiskiminetas Junction; William Ephraim of Freeport, Frank K. of Butler and Harry of Bradford. He has 22 grandchildren and one great grandchild. He was justice of the peace 15 years. He was never sick in his life, walking into town every day until five weeks ago.

Mrs. Emily Ihmsen McGinley.

Mrs. Emily Ihmsen McGinley died yesterday at 3 p. m. suddenly of apoplexy at her home, No. 329 South Highland avenue. She was 74 years old. Mrs. McGinley was born in Waterford, N. J., in 1830, and came to Pittsburgh with her parents when she was 14 years old. Her husband, who died 30 years ago, was Michael E. McGinley, one of the pioneer restaurant proprietors of Pittsburgh. Mrs. McGinley was a niece of the late Mrs. Mary McKee, who was the widow of Samuel McKee, the glass manufacturer, and the sister of Charles Ihmsen, Mrs. McGinley's father. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. M. F. Duncan and Miss Kate McGinley. Funeral services will be held at the house at 10 a. m. tomorrow. The burial will be private.

Capt. David J. Owens.

Capt. David J. Owens, 38 years old, a member of the Pittsburgh fire bureau, died at St. Agnes' hospital, Philadelphia, yesterday morning, after undergoing an operation for cancer of the stomach. Capt. Owens was a well-known politician of the Sixth ward, and was identified with the citizens party. Captain Owens was stationed at No. 3 engine house, Seventh avenue and Cherry alley. He had been ill for several months and about two weeks ago he went to Philadelphia to have a small cancerous growth taken from his stomach. The operation was performed 10 days ago and it was thought that he would recover. Yesterday morning he became worse, and died about 10 o'clock. Owens has been on the fire department for 12 years, and lived at No. 1043 Forbes street. He is survived by his widow and two children.

Mrs. Bessie MacCord Dunnells.

Mrs. Bessie MacCord Dunnells, aged 29 years, died yesterday morning at her residence, No. 332 Mathilda street, after a brief illness. She was a daughter of the late Dr. George T. and Ella H. MacCord and a sister of the late Dr. Thomas C. McCord. She is survived by her husband, Clifford G. Dunnells, a civil engineer connected with the contracting department of the American Bridge Company, and an infant son, Clifford G. Dunnells, Jr.

Obituary Notes.

WOULD ERECT BUILDINGS OVER NESHANNOCK RIVER

New Castle Men Have Plans to Increase Business Frontage in That City.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW CASTLE, PA., Aug. 16.—An engineering feat, which will require the expenditure of at least $800,000, and possibly $1,000,000, is being projected by Edward A. McMillen, a local contractor, and others. The projectors are contemplating securing rights from both the city and county to widen the Washington-Pittsburgh street bridge over the Neshannock river and bridge the stream for at least 75 feet on each side of the roadway by mammoth stone arches, upon which business houses and office buildings could be erected.

Contractor McMillen has already had plans prepared. Those interested with him believe the plan practicable in a dividend-paying way, as it would secure over 200 feet additional street frontage in a district where rents for business purposes are mounting skyward.

The plan includes the purchase of the Devlin and Pearson blocks on the west end of the bridge, and the Cloan and William Robinson properties on the Pittsburgh street terminus. The Pearson block, a four-story stone structure, would be allowed to stand with but few changes. Contractor McMillen conceived the project after examining a similar structure erected at Rochester, N. Y.

BURGESS KEYS IS INVESTIGATING

Looking Into the Blue Law Crusade Which Is Causing Division in Wilkinsburg.

TWO DRUG STORES STILL OPEN

Proprietors Say They Can Make Enough Money to Pay Their Fines—Preparing For Active Work on the Annexation of Wilkinsburg to Pittsburgh.

Wilkinsburg is still juggling with the blue laws. Yesterday two druggists and a newsdealer continued their business in the face of the Sabbath crusade, and the usual prosecutions will follow. Burgess John A. Keys has started out on a personal investigation to inform himself of the factional conflict that is being waged behind the legal proceedings of the two militant committees.

W. L. Smith and S. W. Covell are the only two druggists who remained in the field selling soda water on Sunday, and they will make the fight alone, but will have the moral support of the other five tradesmen who have dropped out on the first day of the week. The fact that the fight has narrowed down to Smith, Covell and the committee of five against the Sabbatarian element and the committee of 12 is no surprise. This was planned several weeks ago. The druggists say that the two stores open on Sunday can make enough money to pay their fines and carry on the campaign indefinitely.

A lively week is promised. Constable Henry W. McKallp will return from his vacation this week, and a big batch of warrants which have accumulated in Justice J. J. Walker's office will be given into the contsable's hands for service.

The committee of five has been figuring on including the dealers in Sunday newspapers in their informations, and warrants are likely to be served on the proprietor of a local news stand. The committee of 12 was disposed to allow the sale of Sunday publications and periodicals on the Sabbath provided newsboys were not permitted to cry their wares through the streets during the hours of religious service.

Yesterday morning two private detectives in the employ of the committee of five made their appearance in the town before daylight and watched every move of the newsdealers. The sleuths then turned their attention to the ice plant and the liverymen.

The burgess started out last week for a little pathfinding on his own account. He visited the news stands, tobacco establishments and other places which are affected by the blue law crusade. He explained that it was not the purpose of the church committee of 12 to harass any of the tradesmen and stated that no prosecutions would be made where exceptions to the statutes had been granted by the courts. He gave much attention to the slot machines where chocolate chips and chewing gum are doled out for a penny deposit. These machines have been ordered off the streets on Sundays.

The attorney for the committee preparing the petitions for the annexation of Wilkinsburg to the city, arrived home from an eastern trip yesterday and will start to work today. His name is withheld. S. W. Covell, one of the leading advocates of the open Sunday for the druggists and a member of the annexation committee, said:

"The petitions will be ready this week. Probably 75 or 100 citizens have seen me within the last few days to offer encouragement to the plan. Nearly 200 copies of the petition can be circulated simultaneously. The signatures of 20 per cent of the qualified voters of the borough are necessary to the paper in order to have it recognized in court, and I feel certain we can secure the requisite number of signers in less than a day.

"Some who object to annexation demur because they are under the impression that Wilkinsburg's local option law will no longer be effective if we become a part of the city. This is a mistake. Special legislation at Harrisburg was passed to secure local option in the territory embraced in Wilkins township, and the fact that we will go into the municipal government of Pittsburgh can have no more effect in changing the status of the anti-liquor law than the creation of the borough of Wilkinsburg had years ago."

CONGREGATION REFUSES TO RELEASE ITS PASTOR

Rev. Frederick Brand of St. Paul's Lutheran Church Wants to Go West.

The Rev. Frederick Brand, pastor of St. Paul's Second German Lutheran church, Pride and Ann streets, yesterday afternoon held a long and stormy session with his congregation at which he tried to secure his release that he may accept a call to Trinity German Lutheran church, Springfield, Ill. Although no hope was held out that the pastor will be released, final action was postponed until next Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Brand has been pastor at St. Paul's for 10 years, having come there from the Braddock church, of which he became pastor as soon as he was ordained to the ministry. He served the Braddock church seven years, during which time he organized churches at McKeesport, Pitcairn and Homestead. During the 10 years he has been pastor of St. Paul's the church has been freed from debt.

At yesterday's meeting Mr. Brand laid the matter before the congregation and asked that he be released so that he may accept the call. The congregation voted in a body, but not to release him, as they desire to retain him as their pastor. Long arguments ensued, but all of no avail, and after a meeting lasting nearly three hours it was agreed to defer the final decision until next Sunday.

OUTLAW FATALLY SHOT WHILE RESISTING ARREST

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 16—Andrew Myers was fatally shot tonight by Sheriff Routzahn while resisting arrest on the charge of highway robbery. The posse went to Myers' house, near South Charleston, where it was met by the fugitive with drawn revolvers. The officers fired several shots, two of which took effect. A few hours previous Myers had escaped from Detective John T. Norris, after giving him a bad beating. With another man, Myers brutally attacked C. O. Hayes, a wealthy farmer, and after taking his valuables, threw him in a fence corner. The posse is scouring the country for his accomplice.

ACCUSED MURDERER JUMPS INTO OCEAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Braving death in the ocean rather than face a trial for murder, Herman T. Coates broke from his guards and leaped overboard from the Old Dominion liner Montreal when two miles off Sea Girt, today. Coates was being brought back to Nauet, near Spring Valley, Rockland county, where there is an indictment against him for the murder of a coachman in 1902. A boat was quickly lowered and Coates was rescued and brought aboard.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

LAW'S SUPREMACY MUST BE HEEDED

Great Need of This Country Is Respect For Constituted Authority.

DR. MULLER'S STRONG SERMON

American Lawlessness Has Its Springs in the Home, School and Church, Says the Allegheny Methodist Episcopal Clergyman—The Crime of Lynching.

"The Burning Bush and Its Lessons," was the topic of a sermon preached by the Rev. D. H. Muller, D. D., in the Arch Street Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny, yesterday morning. His text was from Exodus xii:5, "Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes from off thy feet for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground." Dr. Muller said in part:

What Moses saw was wonderful—a bush aflame and unconsumed. The vision was given to him in the solitude of Mt. Horeb. Men grow strong in silence. All great reformers from Elijah to Lincoln were thus prepared. It symbolized the fiery trials of God's people and saints, undismayed and undestroyed by persecutions. From the hissing flame came a voice saying, "I am the God of thy fathers, of Abraham, etc." This utterance speaks of the eternity of God, and His unchanging faithfulness. It demands reverence. "Put off thy shoes, for the place is holy ground." The soul of religion and core of civilization are measured by reverence for holy persons, places, laws and thoughts.

Irreverence of holy things is idolatry of self. The silly speech of the profane discloses an arid heart desert. The murderer possesses no reverence for human life. Our country is covered with bloodshed and murder. Twenty-one thousand murders in one year ought to emphasize the sixth command, "Thou shalt not kill."

The widespread disregard and defiance of law and constituted authority seen in atrocious lynchings and mob rule reveal our national disgrace and danger, and also our duty. The magnitude and wickedness of this evil aligns every man for or against law, for or against orderly government, for or against civilization or anarchy and barbarism. No logical, rational justification or defense can be given in the American republic for these brutal murders. They do not deter crime, but intensify the bestial lust for blood and not horror for the offense.

The startling thing is the support and advocacy of this savagery by intelligent persons. The most repulsive address in its favor was given recently at Chautauqua, N. Y., which, if uttered in this city in any church, would have aroused the audience to indignation and expulsion of the speaker. Legalizing lynching, mutilation of the criminal and expatriation of the negro can never settle this race question. We can never return to medieval barbarity and feudalism save we become worse.

The great need of our country is to learn and heed the supremacy of law and respect for constituted authority. American lawlessness has its springs in the home, school and church. The notions that liberty is the right of every man to do what he will, and that majorities can do no wrong are common and popular. Law is banished from many homes and children are coaxed or bribed instead of commanded. The rod is banished from the school and pupils are allured to studies which once were required. The moral Governor of the Universe is dethroned and a kindly, good-natured god substituted. Obedience is the foundation of all virtue, and to counteract the unrestrained passions of the mob we must not only use force where necessary, but cultivate a reverence for law, moral and civil, and a passionate loyalty to it.

KIND OF RELIGION THAT MAKES A MAN

Allegheny Presbyterian Minister Occupies the Pulpit in Pittsburgh Church.

The Rev. J. Allison Platts, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, Allegheny, occupied the pulpit in the Third Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh, last night, and preached on "A Religion That Makes Man." Mr. Platts sketched briefly the things that go to make up an ideal man and then showed what the religion of Jesus Christ does for men, physically, mentally, morally and spiritually. In conclusion he said:

We sometimes hear it said that religion is a very good thing for women and children. Yes. There is something in the gospel of God's son which powerfully appeals to all that is best and noblest in womanhood. We thank God that this is so, for it has given to the world that type of motherhood without which our civilization could never have reached its present height. The religion of Christ is adapted to our children, and we glory in it, for it thus seizes their lives in the plastic period and lays the foundations in youth, broad and deep, upon which may be builded character which can stand the tests of life and of time.

But while the statement is true, the inference that the Christian religion is not for men is most emphatically false. Human nature is essentially the same wherever you find it, and what is good for it in one guise is good for it in another. Jesus Christ glorified womanhood and blessed the children, but he called men. Now, as then, the touch of the Christ exalts womanhood. Christianity makes greatness. Look at them! Our great athletes, barring the professionals, who are in athletics simply for a money consideration, are largely Christian men. Our great poets and philosophers, men who have thrilled our hearts and enlarged our conceptions, are almost invariably Christian men.

Our leading warriors and statesmen, men who have led us in civilization's conflicts, who have solved our great problems, and guided our destinies, are almost universally Christian men. Our spiritual leaders, who have lifted our thoughts above the sordid and broadened our lives beyond the temporal—all Christian men. After the lapse of 19 centuries Jesus Christ towers aloft, the one perfect, the only ideal man. His religion, designed to make like Himself, is for men. Deeply loved, and consistently lived, this gospel of his makes great men.

NONE ARE EXEMPT FROM SUFFERING

All Reach the Same Level in Time, Says the Rev. A. L. Petty, D. D.

The Rev. Dr. A. L. Petty, of Ohio, occupied the pulpit in the Emory Methodist Episcopal church, yesterday morning, in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. A. D. Mink. He preached a sermon on "The Uses of Adversity." The text was from II. Corinthians, xii:7-9. Dr. Petty said in part:

No lot in life is exempt from suffering. Amid all the conventional differences in human lives, sooner or later we come to the same level of suffering. Some rise high; some fall low; there is a great gulf between the classes in society, but there are two places where they meet on a common level—in suffering and in the grave.

Paul's course under his afflictions points the way for us. He says: "I besought the Lord that it might depart from me." Not once only, but thrice he prayed for its removal. It is right for us to pray for temporal as well as for spiritual blessings; to pray for recovery from sickness. God can heal, and heal without the interposition of second causes.

That affliction should have been lifted from Paul would seem of more importance—in the light of his place as the great apostle to the Gentiles—than that some hysterical woman or hair-brained crank, never so harmless as when ill or dead, should be cured. But he bore suffering and worked on for many years, "Lest I should be exalted above measure." Affliction humbles pride, teaches the sufficiency of God and forms the common plane of human sympathy.

SAMUEL LOY'S FAMILY EXPRESSES NO ALARM

Pittsburgh Veteran, Who Wandered from Train in New Mexico, Is Safe.

Samuel Loy, the Pittsburgh grocer, who was found wandering across the prairie near Albuquerque, N. M., on Saturday evening, figures in strange vicissitudes in traveling to see his brother in Los Angeles, Cal., from whom he had been separated for 27 years. Mr. Loy is 60 years of age, a veteran of the civil war and took advantage of the low rate excursion to California in order to meet his brother and his old army comrades. He left the railroad train at an Indian village and lost his way. His family here is not alarmed and expect him to continue his journey.

Mr. Loy conducts a grocery at No. 720 Oakwood street, near Frankstown avenue. His brother, James, moved to California nearly 30 years ago and settled in Los Angeles. Last Tuesday Mr. Loy started on his long journey, and on Saturday night his son, Samuel Loy, Jr., of No. 760 Hamilton avenue, received a telegram from A. J. Edwards, commander of the Albuquerque G. A. R. post, stating that Mr. Loy had been found and that his mind was unbalanced.

"I felt some anxiety for father in the report that he had been robbed," said Samuel Loy, Jr., last night, "but we have good reason to believe that he had simply left the train and that it had left the station before he had time to catch his car. He probably wandered across the prairie and got lost, but I do not think that his mind is unbalanced, as he gave a perfectly rational story to the commander of the Grand Army post. I have telegraphed his brother in Los Angeles to meet him and look after his welfare."

ANOTHER FEUD DUEL.

Breathitt County, Kentucky, the Scene of Another Bloody Encounter.

LEXINGTON, KY., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—In a feud fight at Oakdale, Breathitt county, near Jackson, this morning, Ed. Estis was killed and James Salyer and his brother John wounded. Trouble had been brewing between the families for a long time and yesterday afternoon several men, including the Salyer brothers and Estis were discussing the Jett-White verdict at Cynthiana, when James Salyer and Estis had a dispute.

This morning Estis was on his way to church and met the Salyer boys in the road. The men all drew their weapons at sight and began firing. Estis was shot four times, two bullets from each of the revolvers of the Salyer brothers taking effect. He died on the spot. His bullets went wild excepting two, one inflicting a slight flesh wound in James Salyer's right arm and the other grazing John Salyer's leg.

VISITORS SPOKE HERE.

Delegates to Lutheran Synod Discussed Missions in Local Churches.

The pulpits in the majority of the Lutheran churches in Pittsburgh and Allegheny were occupied yesterday by ministers who have been attending the annual meeting of the joint synod of Ohio and Pennsylvania during the week. These meetings have been held in St. Paul's Lutheran church, Chartiers street, Allegheny, since last Wednesday, and have proved most interesting.

"Missions" was the general topic assigned for pulpit discussions yesterday and the addresses were delivered in both the German and the English languages. The Rev. Dr. C. H. L. Schuette of Columbus, O., president of the entire synod, preached yesterday morning in St. Paul's church, at which time communion was celebrated. A mission service was held in the evening and the speakers were the Revs. H. J. Schuh, F. Beiswenger and W. Witte.

SINGERLY SAID TO BE A PITTSBURGHER

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(Special.)—James B. Singerly, alias Parker, who with his 21-year-old wife is now in jail here on a charge of forgery, is said to hail from Pittsburgh. Singerly has a criminal record. He was confined in the Elmira reformatory in 1899, and, it is said, married soon after he was released. He was said to be an expert pickpocket. His photograph has long been in the rogues' gallery.

PITTSBURGH PEOPLE TO SEE THE SERIES

Much interest is being manifested in the coming series between the Pirates and the Giants this week—Wednesday, Thursday and Friday—at New York. Quite a number of local followers of the champions will take in the series. Thayer Torreyson of Homestead will head a delegation of fans from that place, who will also attend the races. Torreyson won on Jeffries and will lay his money on the Pittsburghs in the series.

International Horse Exhibition.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 16.—An international exhibition of American horses has been decided on for the week of September 28 to October 3, 1903, in this city. Well-known horsemen and lovers of horses from all parts of the United States and Canada constitute the membership of the association. There are 78 classes for the various kinds of utility and pleasure horses. The exhibitions will be held annually and the prizes will be increased from year to year.

AMONG THE AMATEURS.

The Trenton A. C. will play the Brushton Juniors next Saturday.

The A. D. T. team defeated the Postals, 6 to 4. Joe Harris pitched for the winners.

Any 14 and 15-year-old teams wanting Sunday games, address L. L. Alvino, 4062 Penn avenue.

The Crescent A. C. won from the Butler Stars, 13 to 8. All 10 to 12-year-old teams wanting games, address B. Stout, Oak Station, Pa.

The Mt. Washington Juniors would like to hear from all 7 and 10-year-old teams for Saturday. Address J. M. Kenney, 42 William street, Mt. Washington, or care The Gazette sporting editor.

The Valley A. A. denies it was beaten by the Park View team of Sharpsburg. Instead, it claims the game was given to the Valley A. A. by the score of 9 to 0 on account of Park View having the field.

The Pequots and Osceolas will clash this evening on the Western University campus. Any good 18-year-old team wishing a game for next Saturday with Pequot can secure same by addressing M. M. Clayton, 32 Maple avenue, Allegheny.

The Winterton A. C. defeated the Oak A. C., 14 to 5. The feature was the pitching of Lindenteiser for the Wintertons, who had 13 strikeouts. The Wintertons would like to hear from all 12 and 13-year-old teams for Sunday games. Address 3509 Butler street, city.

RIVALRY EXISTS AMONG MINORS

Bloomington and Decatur of III League to Play Post-Season Series.

THEN MEET CENTRAL LEAGUERS

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., Aug. 16.—The winding up of the season of 1903 in the Three I league has aroused discussion over a proposed post-season series between the teams of Bloomington and Decatur. It is practically conceded that the two teams will finish in first and second positions, and there is a general desire to play seven or eight games to determine, if possible, the superiority. It is proposed to play three games in Bloomington, three in Decatur and the others on some neutral field, preferably Springfield.

There is also a proposition under consideration for a series of games with the pennant winner in the Central league. If the weather proves favorable for games the latter part of September, a series may be arranged between the teams that win the bunting in the two leagues. There is much rivalry over the respective speed of the two organizations, and the test of strength by the two leaders would attract much attention in minor league circles of the west.

The usual reports from Bloomington and Rock Island with reference to next season's circuit appeared on schedule time and as usual did not fail to note that Rockford would not be in the line-up. Inasmuch as the franchises are of three years' duration and Rockford compares favorably with the other cities in patronage, the circuit talk at this stage is exceedingly wild, so far as this city is concerned.

Protested games, the umpire question, and one or two other points promise to make the fall meeting of the league unusually interesting. The Rockford club has paid to President Sexton a fine of $50, assessed for the alleged taking of the team off the field in Springfield.

The Rock Island club has taken on Pitcher Brennan, formerly of this league, who has been in the southern this season. "Snapper" Kennedy has supplanted Walter Hickey on the Cedar Rapids team and Duvall, who was dropped from the Rabbits, has joined Springfield. Pitcher Calhoun, who was dropped from the Rockford club, is to be given another trial next week.

CALUMETS VICTORIOUS.

Beat St. Paul and Will Tackle Shamrocks of Montreal at Lacrosse.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—The last of this season's series of lacrosse games between St. Paul and the Calumets of Chicago was played here today and ended in a victory for the local team, 10 to 2. This was the third and deciding game of the series, each team having one game to its credit.

Today's game was full of brilliant plays by both teams, although the local aggregation was much the faster, showed better team work and scored with comparative ease. The winner of the series will meet the Shamrocks of Montreal, the Canadian champions, on September 17, in Chicago.

SWIMMING RECORD.

Miss Ethel Golding Covers Hundred Yards in 1:24 2-5, World's Mark.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(Special.)—In the presence of 5,000 spectators Miss Ethel Golding of Bath Beach won the 100-yard dash in a swimming contest between young women off Captains pier, Bath Beach, Saturday, and established a new world's record of 1:24 2-5 for her class. The previous record was 1:30 flat, held by an English girl.

Miss Golding, who is only 18 years of age, accomplished her record-breaking performance under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic union, with which it will be registered.

COL. BUNDY DEAD.

Distinguished Ohio Soldier and Citizen Succumbs to Attack of Kidney Trouble.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Col. William E. Bundy, United States district attorney for southern Ohio and commandant of the First regiment, Ohio national guard, died suddenly here today after an illness of but two days. Uraemic poisoning caused by non-action of the kidneys brought on a spasm which resulted fatally.

Col. Bundy was born in 1866. He was a grandson of Congressman H. S. Bundy, a distinguished Ohioan, who reared him on the death of his parents. Col. Bundy was president of the Ohio Republican league, commander-in-chief of the National Sons of Veterans, trustee of the Ohio state university, and held numerous municipal offices and stood high as an official and lawyer. He had held the position of United States district attorney for southern Ohio since 1898. He was a nephew of Mrs. Foraker, wife of the Ohio senator. Mrs. Bundy, who was the daughter of Congressman John P. Leedom, survives him, with one son, a boy of 10. Col. Bundy will be buried with military honors by his regiment.

FELTZ TO FIGHT NIEL FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Frankie Niel of San Francisco and Tommy Feltz have been matched for the world's bantam weight championship, the battle to take place before the Metropolitan Athletic club, Detroit, October 14.

This will be the first time Niel has fought east of 'Frisco. The battle will be 16 rounds. Feltz fights Kid Goodman in St. Louis next Thursday night and Johnny Ragan at Kansas City a week from Monday night.

NORTHSIDE IS CHALLENGED BY THE WINDSOR TEAM

Chicago Surprised at Strength of Wilmington Independent Team—Risher Serene.

The Northside team of Allegheny, which won from the Fairbanks Saturday at Etna, has been challenged by the Windsors for a game to be played either September 5 or 12. Exposition park was suggested by Manager Mason of the Windsors, but he learned that it would be impossible to secure it, because the Pirates will be at home on both these dates.

It was announced that the Windsors had disbanded, which was true, but an effort will be made to get all the players of last year's team together for this contest with the Northsides, if it can be arranged, which is likely. The managers of the respective teams will try to secure some other park, or grounds for the game.

The Chicago National league team with "Jock" Menefee pitching, was surprised at Wilmington, Del., Saturday, losing to that fast independent club, 4 to 3. Everson, an old-time independent pitcher, was on the rubber for Wilmington and when the big leaguers were taking kindly to his offerings in the sixth inning Faulkner was substituted. Chicago has met the same dose that other big league teams have met when they tried the independents—a defeat. Wilmington won from Homestead last week.

Homestead got a good start at Atlantic City Saturday, taking the first through the pitching of Buck Washer and Harry McChesney's home run. Manager Risher has not as yet sent home a pitiful tale about the bad umpiring, which is alleged to be had at that place. After this series Risher will play one or two more games in the east and will then return home to play at Steel Works park Saturday with the Electric club of Wilkinsburg.

CROWD AT MEETING.

Over 1,500 Delegates and Members of C. M. B. A. at Alliquippa Park.

The monthly meeting of the advisory council of the Catholic Mutual Beneficial society was held yesterday in Alliquippa park. In addition to the delegates, the members in general, were invited to attend. It had been expected that about 500 persons would be present, but over 1,500 were there. They came from all over Western Pennsylvania, and in a sense the meeting was a reunion.

At the business meeting the Rev. Father Boniface, rector of St. Michael's church, South Side, made the address of the day, his subject being "Religion and Fraternity." Grand Secretary J. W. Sullivan read a report showing the organization had made wonderful gains in the past three years. Prof. M. J. McMahon, the grand chancellor, made an address on his experiences while abroad.

The other addresses of the day were made by J. P. Kunkle of Allegheny; A. S. Atwater of McKeesport; M. J. Clark and F. J. Brady, grand trustees, and B. J. Devlin, president of the council. The visitors were guests of the council at luncheon. There being so many present, the luncheon lasted from 3 to 7 o'clock.

IS EXPERIMENTING ON SUBSTITUTE FOR RADIUM

Jefferson College Hospital Physician Expects to Cheapen Cancer Treatment.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—"I am experimenting now with a chemical, which, while possessing radial activity so great that it may be used in place of radium, will be so cheap that it will be within the reach of any physician for the treatment of diseases in which radium is suggested as a remedy."

The above statement was made today by Dr. W. F. Manges of the Jefferson College hospital, when asked for his opinion of the probable benefit of radium rays in the treatment of deep-seated cancer.

"I do not mean to say that it has the intense radial activity of pure radium," said Dr. Manges, "but its activity is so remarkable that I believe it can be made to take the place of radium of a grade which has produced most remarkable results in experiments carried on in Europe. But chief of all it will cost many thousand times less than even the impure radium, which most experimenters use."

Dr. Manges is in charge of the X-ray work at Jefferson, and has made a special study of its use in the cure of cancer.

CHESTER D. POTTER.

HOUSE WAS RANSACKED.

Valuable Silverware Stolen from Residence of Mrs. Agnes Thompson in Bellevue.

Mrs. Agnes Thompson of Ellsworth avenue, Bellevue, reported to the Allegheny police last night that her house had been entered and a set of silver knives and forks, a chafing dish, a pair of opera glasses and a silver tea set valued at $200, stolen. Mrs. Thompson had been away from home for about two weeks on a visit to Loretto, Pa. During her absence her brother, J. R. Duncan, visited the house from time to time to see that everything was in order.

When Duncan went there on Thursday he found that one of the windows had been jimmied open and the house thoroughly ransacked. It is supposed the house was burglarized on Wednesday. Mr. Duncan made everything about the house secure, but not wishing to alarm Mrs. Thompson, told her nothing of the robbery until she returned from Loretto last night.

SMALLPOX IN BEN AVON.

Patient Brought to Pittsburgh in a Carriage—One More Death.

Miss Jemimah Whitten, 32 years old, of Ben Avon, was sent to the Municipal hospital yesterday afternoon by Inspector W. T. Shannon of the bureau of health suffering from a slight attack of smallpox. The woman has been ill for about two weeks and had been treated for typhoid fever. She was taken yesterday and put into a carriage to be brought to the city. Inspector Shannon was notified that the woman was being brought to the city and met the carriage at No. 312 Wayne street, where the sick woman was being removed from the vehicle. He found the case to be one of smallpox and had the rig driven to the hospital. The sick woman was taken in and the carriage and driver disinfected.

Daniel Hart, 19 years old, died at the Municipal hospital yesterday of smallpox. He was admitted to the institution August 3. He lived at No. 424 Beatty street.

One case of the disease was reported to the bureau of health yesterday, Margaretta Welsh, 15 years old, of No. 2810 Grant boulevard.

WOMAN FOUND DYING AND COMPANION ARRESTED

LANCASTER, PA., Aug. 16.—Mrs. John Burr, aged 30, was found late last night in a house in West Chestnut street, dying from a bullet wound in her breast. In a few minutes she expired. Her companion, George Brenner, was arrested on suspicion of having murdered her. He was released this morning upon the finding of the coroner's jury that the woman had committed suicide. District Attorney Groff, however, was not satisfied with this verdict and says he will keep Brenner under surveillance and investigate further.

Was Able to Tell His Name.

The man who was found lying on the railroad track in McKeesport yesterday, having fell off an excursion train from Conneaut, recovered consciousness at the McKeesport hospital yesterday long enough to tell the attendant his name was P. L. Lewis of West Elizabeth. None of his friends have arrived from Elizabeth yet. His skull was fractured and he will die.

FATAL PLEASURE TRIP.

Pittsburgher Had Both Legs Cut Off by a Train at Wheeling and May Die.

James Murray, aged 30 years, a resident of this city, was thrown beneath the wheels of a Baltimore & Ohio railroad passenger train at Wheeling shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the sight of 200 spectators. The wheels passed over both his legs, crushing them to such an extent that they had to be amputated at the North Wheeling hospital.

Murray went to Wheeling on an excursion train from here and missed it coming back. Just as he reached the depot to catch the train he saw it pulling out of the depot. He ran to catch it and failed and was knocked down and run over by another train. His condition is critical.

SIR THOMAS CONFIDENT SHAMROCK III. WILL WIN

Trials With Shamrock I. Revived His Faith and He Looks For Greatest Contests on Waters of World.

By SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—"Now that the races are about to be run, I can only say this: I am more confident than when I left England that Shamrock III. will lift the America's cup. I say this in utmost candor and frankness. I say it after closely watching the boat work on her trial spins for a long period of time. These trials have been most satisfying to me. Shamrock III. was matched against a game competitor in these trials—Shamrock I. The old boat has revived my faith and pride in her by the wondrous improvement she has shown in her recent work, but Shamrock III. has beaten her fairly and squarely, has sailed all around her at times, and has always established her superiority in all the varying weather we have experienced.

"Let me say now again, as I have many times before, that I sincerely hope the races will be run under the most favorable conditions for putting both boats at their best. I have devoted my time and my best endeavors for the last few years—saying nothing of the cost—to these repeated attempts to capture the America cup. I am sure that the American public feels and knows that in doing so I have had a higher aim and ambition—namely the encouragement of the sport.

"I believe we are going to see the greatest races ever run on the waters of the world. I believe we have two of the fastest yachts ever built as contestants. I know that both sides are striving for a fair fight, and I say now, as I have so often said before, but never with so much earnestness as I now say it—

"May the best boat win."

GANG FOREMAN WAS STABBED IN THE NECK

Allegheny Police Are Looking For a Hungarian, the Alleged Assailant.

John O'Neil, alias John O'Halligan, of No. 2032 Beaver avenue, staggered along West Market street, Allegheny, shortly after 9 o'clock last night with blood streaming from a knife wound in his neck just below the left ear. He is a gang foreman for Fred Gwinner, a contractor. O'Neil sat down on a door step near McGowan street and asked for a doctor. None could be found close by and Lieut. Robert McKelvey had him sent to St. John's General hospital. When he arrived there he was unconscious from loss of blood.

Salt water was injected into his arms and legs and he recovered sufficiently to tell how he got stabbed. He said he had been drinking with a lot of Slavs in a house in McGowan street all evening; left the house about 9 o'clock and went down to the end of the street, where he met a Hungarian who stabbed him and ran. He claims he did not know the fellow who cut him.

Assistant Superintendent John Glenn, Detective Charles Hengland and Special Officers Frank Lee and Joseph L. Dean worked on the case, believing at first that O'Neil would die. They found the facts as above stated, but could not find out who cut O'Neil. They are of the belief, however, that he boards, with 29 other Slavs and Hungarians, in the house of Peter Malovitsch at No. 1 McGowan avenue. A pool of blood was found on the front steps of the house and a trail of the blood led from there to where O'Neil was placed in the patrol wagon. Police guarded the house last night and several arrests may be made.

O'Neil was in a fairly good condition at midnight, and said when he gets out of the hospital he will hunt up the man who cut him and give him a good beating.

PANAMA WANTS CANAL

Sends Petition to Colombian Congress Asking Ratification of Treaty.

PANAMA, Aug. 16.—The following telegram in favor of the Panama canal, was sent this afternoon:

The Vice President of the Republic, Bogota:

The municipalities of David, Agua Dulce, Santiago de Veraguas, Sona, La Mesa, Montijo, Chepo, Chame, Chorrera, San Carlos, Emperador and numerous others request congress to approve the Hay-Herran treaty, which signifies the salvation of the isthmus. I am sending by mail the original petitions. Inform the house of representatives and the senate and publish.

DEMETRIO BRID.
President of the Municipality of Panama.

Nearly all the municipalities of the isthmus have already answered favorably the request of the municipal council here to send a petition to congress in favor of the ratification of the canal treaty.

HARTY HAS AUDIENCE.

Pius X. Discusses Philippine Situation With New American Archbishop.

ROME, Aug. 16.—The pope at 5 o'clock this afternoon received at a private audience Archbishop Harty, who was yesterday consecrated archbishop of Manila by Cardinal Satolli, with whom he spoke at length about the situation in the Philippine islands, showing himself fully conversant with the state of affairs there.

Pius X. said the efforts of the clergy toward the pacification of the archipelago and the triumph of Catholicism would always receive the warmest support at Rome. He presented Archbishop Harty with a beautiful Episcopal pectoral cross. Archbishop Harty then presented to the pontiff his secretary, Monsignor W. Fowler, and Father Donohue of Alabama, to both of whom the pope addressed very kind words.

PENNSYLVANIA VETERANS ARRIVE IN SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—While the formal exercises of the national reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic do not begin until tomorrow, the encampment was, to all intents and purposes, opened today, with the arrival of Gen. Thomas J. Stewart, commander-in-chief, on a special train bearing 383 members of the different Pennsylvania posts.

Excursionist Hurt at Ohio Pyle.

Miss Clara Tasot, 22 years old, of East street, Allegheny, had her kneecap fractured yesterday at Ohio Pyle, O., by falling from a rock. While walking along the creek one of the party gave her a push in a spirit of fun. She was brought to the Baltimore & Ohio station on the excursion train and taken to St. John's General hospital in an ambulance.

Wanted in Johnstown.

Lewis Caselman, whose address is not given in the Pittsburgh city directory, was arrested yesterday for drunkenness. It was found that the man is wanted by the authorities in Johnstown on a serious charge and he was turned over to them.

BULL MOVEMENT HELPS UNEASY SPECULATORS

Many Individuals, Firms and Corporations Enabled to Realize on Securities and Strengthen Their Position.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—In checking the demoralization which was running in the market, Wall street on Monday accomplished the seemingly impossible. Once the selling mania was halted, recovery in speculative issues was natural. The 5 to 15 point rebound constitutes no 20th century miracle, and was amply justified by the technical position of the market, irrespective of news development. Of news, in fact, there was very little during the week which would explain specific advances, and in consequence many persons, even those chiefly concerned in bringing about the remarkable change, were inclined to the belief that the prices had recovered too rapidly to hold their full improvement. Possibly that is true, but that objection is really foreign to the main consideration. This rests on the fact that the very considerable advance enabled many individuals, firms and possibly corporations, to realize much more for securities which they were forced to sell than seemed possible a week ago, and thus escape insolvency.

Doubtless the bear contingent does not fully share the jubilation current in Wall street over the rally in the market, or duly appreciate the desirability of their position. After all, however, it is a question of give and take in the speculative markets. The penalties of over-pessimism are similar in kind to those of over-optimism, and both parties have experienced some taste of them. The outcome of it all should result in markets more nearly nominal than any that have been seen for many months past, the public and Wall street would be the better for it. An immediate return to a speculative movement for the advance now, with all the uncertainties of the future before us—crop outcome still undetermined in important staples, the monetary situation confused and contraction steadily working in business, particularly with the textile manufacturing industry and that barometer of them all, the iron and steel trade, would be fully as deplorable as the other extreme, from which the community is emerging, and which involved unreasoning selling of everything on the list at any price. Wall street is a market of extremes, but extremes are dangerous.

The prosperity of the country in the recent years has not been a sham. The interval has been one of marvelous expansion and genuine development. Much of what has been accomplished remains today, and promises continuance, probably, however, upon a somewhat reduced scale, for the excesses of over-capitalization and over-speculations, which reflected in the pricking of the Wall street bubble, is certain to have some influence on general trade and industry.

It is well to take a common sense view of affairs, and avoid rushing from one difficulty into another. In changing sentiment Wall street has accomplished much. Men take a calmer view of things, considering what is favorable and unfavorable in the future, and strengthening weak positions. The outlook is by no means hopeless, but on the other hand it is not yet absolutely fine sailing. The time of the year is against a sustained market revival, both as to crop outlook and money. We cannot afford a repetition of the errors of last August and September. Were uncertainties out of the way, there is still to be considered the injury wrought to many by the declines. The men who were forced to sell good stocks to protect syndicate underwritings, and unsalable issues, still have the undigested things with them, and are crippled.

Important Tests in Wetzel County

Lower southwest operators had little more to claim their attention during the past week than the one that preceded it. The important tests that were expected to get the sand in the deep territory in Wetzel county failed to reach that interesting point, but are now promised before the end of the present week. In the shallow sand districts several discoveries aroused some interest, as extensions to some of the older developments, and one, at least, gives the impression that a new pool has been discovered. In times like the present, when there is such a general effort to find new producing territory, operators take cognizance of discoveries that under ordinary conditions would attract but little attention. Operators are no longer turning aside from territory that is not capable of furnishing any thing better than light pumpers. This is illustrated in several localities, such as the Burning Springs district, in Wirt county, where the majority of the wells do not exceed five barrels a day. In parts of Southeastern Ohio the greatest activity is witnessed where the production of the wells averages much less.

The present market price of high grade crude has brought about this change, but it only applies to the shallow sand territory. In the deep sand territory even at $1.56 market, the present quotation, would scarcely be profitable.

The progress of the drill in the lower southwest during the week revealed no gushers, despite the great activity in all fields. The results in the Gordon sand territory, in the vicinity of Salem, Harrison county, were anything but satisfactory. Four dusters and three very light producers were contributed by this district, and a part of the number were important test wells that were expected to show extensions to some of the old developments. With the unsatisfactory showing of the past week, it is quite probable that operations from now on will decline in this district and greater energy be exerted in the development of the Pine Grove extension in Wetzel county. In new work of the experimental kind this district leads all others in the lower southwest.

Interest very naturally centers in the extreme northeast on Steels run, in the vicinity of the good strike on the Thomas J. Showalter farm, which is now almost two months old, and is still producing 225 barrels a day. In this section some 15 test wells are drilling, but it will be two weeks or more before any of them reach the sand. On the west side, in the vicinity of the good producer, on the Lida Lemaster's farm, there is the same eagerness to complete new work. About the same number of test wells are drilling as in the vicinity of the Showalter well to the northeast. Barring accidents, the Southern Oil Company and Greenlee should get their test on the Furbee farm into the sand this week.

With one exception, the progress of developments in the Folsom district were marked by a run of light producers and failures. The exception was a 130-barrel producer of the South Penn Oil Company, on the A. M. Heldreth farm. Unless the last half of the current month brings better results than the first half, the record at its close will show less new production from this quarter than for any month during the latter part of last year or the first of this.

In the Fallen Timber Run district four new wells were completed and all proved to be light producers in the Dunkard, or Big Injun sands. Early in the year this was thought to be a very promising pool, but the efforts to extend the producing area have not been satisfactory, and even inside of the producing limits there have been some failures. However, this stretch of territory is being very thoroughly explored and its status will soon be determined.

Southwest of Littleton the South Penn Oil Company and the Philadelphia Company are making an active campaign with the drill endeavoring to secure Gordon sand production. Some 15 or more wells are drilling in this territory, and when completed can furnish the desired information as to the probable future of the district. In addition to getting oil in the Gordon, there is a chance for gas in the upper, or Big Injun formation. Some of the wells completed in the Big Injun have been turned into the mains and will not be drilled deeper until the gas pressure has been exhausted.

In the fifth sand territory, in Marion county, the Fisher Oil Company completed a good producer on the Toothman farm, and another has been drilled in by the same company on the Ingham farm that is showing for a light producer. The South Penn Oil Company has two old producers, M. E. Brookover No. 4 and P. B. Amos No. 9, that are making very good records. The first is more than a month old and the last more than three months old. They are still producing 200 and 125 barrels a day respectively. New work in this district is increasing, and the idea that some large producers may be obtained has not been abandoned.

Along the eastern edge of Tyler county there is some scattered work that may locate a new pool. In the Centerville district the South Penn Oil Company completed a second test well on the John Seckman farm and secured a natural producer good for 25 barrels a day in the Big Injun sand. The work along this line is in the nature of extensions to old pools, rather than the development of new.

West of Center Point, Doddridge county, satisfactory progress is being made at the new work started some time ago in the vicinity of the Center Point Oil Company's 30-barrel producer on the Blair-Ash farm. The oil in this district is developed in the Big Injun sand, and there are at this time five wells drilling.

The best shallow sand strike of the week was the Indiana & West Virginia Oil Company's No. 2 on the Harkess tract, on the South Fork of Hughes river, in Ritchie county. The oil was developed in the salt sand and the well is a natural producer, good for 90 barrels a day. It is quite a distance in advance of production and in a locality that had not previously attracted any attention. South of Petroleum in the same county a test well was drilled in that is showing for 15 or 20 barrels a day in the same formation. On Cave run, Calhoun county, is a new well that may lead up to something better. It is rated at 20 barrels a day.

In the Whisky Run extension two producers, each good for 50 barrels a day, were completed. The Carter Oil Company gave its No. 3, on the J. J. Mehaney farm, in this district, a shot early in the week and increased its production to nearly 300 barrels a day. It was still producing 260 barrels at the close of the week. Some of the old wells in this extension are showing remarkable staying qualities. Aside from the Carter company's No. 3, there are five others producing 100 or more barrels each a day. There are more than a dozen wells drilling and starting, but nearly all are located inside of definite limits.

Operators on the Ohio side are very busy. Work in the old developments goes on with great energy, and there is no let up in the search for new pools. In the new development on Rays run, in Washington county, several new producers and an enormous gasser were completed. The oil producers averaged about 20 barrels each, when drilled into the Big Injun sand.

Southeast of the Jackson Ridge pool, in Monroe county, Stuart & Young drilled in a well three miles in advance of developments, that is good for 10 barrels a day in the Keener sand, and is expected to open some new producing territory. In a number of places in this county small producers have been found recently outside of the old producing limits. None exceeded 10 barrels a day and some not half so much, but they will encourage the starting of new work in the hope of finding better.

Northeast of Dexter City, in Noble county, H. J. Parker & Co. are getting some fine producers on the Casper Schott farm. Their No. 12, drilled in more than a week ago, is holding up at better than 160 barrels a day.

Nothing of special importance was developed in the local fields. South of Burgettstown, Washington county, there is some new work starting, but is not attracting any attention.

Garman Faction Claims Victory.

WILKESBARRE, PA., Aug. 16.—The Democrats of Luzerne county held their primaries Saturday. The result is in doubt. The Lanahan faction claim that their candidate for district attorney, James H. Shea, will have 201 of the 303 delegates, while the Garman slate, headed by M. H. McAniff for district attorney, claim 202 votes.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKET PRICES

Sharp Advance in Flour Quotations — Refiners Advance Sugar—No Local Change.

Since the beginning of last week listed quotations for hay have been on new crop, only a few cars of old creeping into market, and they commanded figures in accordance with circumstances surrounding each particular sale. New hay is now accepted all around and is holding firmly at figures quoted, which have not varied for a week. Receipts are only moderate, and demand is good. Straw held its own steadily until Saturday, when a decline of 50 cents a ton occurred. Oats closed the week in a stronger position than they occupied at the opening and prices went forward a half cent, which is likely to be followed by further advances during the present week if the scarcity is unrelieved by heavier shipments. Shelled corn is firm at slightly higher figures, and ear is strong as quoted last Monday. Middlings are in short supply and prices have advanced.

In the grocery market there has been considerable excitement in flour, which has advanced several times, both at the mills and locally, Pittsburgh wholesale quotations having now passed the $5 point, fancy spring patent commanding $5.10, with the market firm. A forward movement has also occurred in fancy winter patent, which is now 10 cents higher than ruling figures at the beginning of last week. Cash wheat is scarce, the light visible supply being reported as cornered. Whether this be true or not there is no doubt as to the fact that there is little wheat available for grinding, and millers are holding prices very stiff. Coffee is quiet at unchanged figures. Refiners advanced sugar 10 points at the close of the week, but the local situation is unchanged. Large quantities of sugar are being sold, although the demand is scarcely as great as the average for this month. Cereals are very firm, with an advancing tendency, some of the local jobbers having already advanced prices, while others are waiting for a more settled condition before putting prices higher. Beans are unchanged.

In canned goods corn is firm and quotations for standards are a little higher. Tomatoes are weak, and local selling prices have declined, notwithstanding the fact that packers have been attempting to force the market to a higher level. California canned fruits, especially cherries and apricots, are in a strong position and firmer in price.

Potatoes have maintained their former position, with quotations steady, while sweets are more abundant and lower. Onions are easier. Cabbage is not so plentiful as it was and quotations have taken slight advance. Spinach is very scarce at higher figures. Egg plant is in heavy supply and prices are lower. Tomatoes have been coming in slowly and quotations have gone forward, with the market very firm for fancies. Corn and peas are unchanged.

Apples are coming forward with great freedom, nearby supplies being now ready for market and a glut has occurred. Quotations have suffered accordingly and a lower range rules. Peaches are still scarce, a few consignments from New York state have come in, but the market has never been filled and prices are firm. Concord grapes are new arrivals and start the season at a higher range than usual. Cantaloupes are coming in slowly, desirable goods being scarce. Rockyfords are late this year and will not likely be here until next week.

Butter advanced a half cent last Monday, since when there has been no change. The market is steady but easy. Cheese is unchanged, and eggs are quoted as before.

Poultry is more plentiful and a lower range of quotations prevails for chickens, with other lines unchanged.

HORSEMAN MISSING.

Abandons Trotter at Erie and Leaves His Bride of Two Months Penniless.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Mystery surrounds the case of E. A. Morse, a Trenton horseman, who disappeared from Erie, Pa., leaving his bride of a week penniless and abandoning a trotting horse which gave promise of earning him a fortune.

Mrs. Morse, who was Miss Ida Miller, is less than 20 years old. She met Morse, who is three times her senior, only two months ago, and married him on short acquaintance. She returned to Trenton today on money forwarded to her by relatives, and George Phillips has gone to Erie to recover the trotter, Reddy Russell, which he had intrusted to Morse for work on the western circuits. Phillips also seeks to learn what has become of $100 stake money which Morse is known to have obtained just before his disappearance.

Friends fear that Morse has fallen victim to race track followers, who have killed him for his money.

MORE LAVA EXPELLED FROM UNEASY VESUVIUS

NAPLES, Aug. 16.—The eruption of Vesuvius somewhat increased today. The stream of lava flowing from the crater is divided into two branches. The longer reaches a distance of 2,500 feet in the direction of the village of Ottajano. The other is now 2,000 feet toward Pompeii. There is no immediate danger.

RUSSIA AFTER A PORT ON THE NORWAY COAST

An Effort to Obtain One Free of Ice Being Made By Secret Agents.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 16.—A dispatch from Christiania states that there is considerable anxiety in Norway over Russia's recent actions in the far north, which seem to indicate that the czar is after an ice-free port on the Atlantic, a desire which Russia is said to have had ever since 1840, when a secret report of Gen. Orloff called the attention to the importance of such a possession. It is beyond doubt that Russian influences are at work among the Laplanders of those districts and even among the pure Norwegians, and are trying to excite the fishing population to hostile manifestations against the Norwegian government.

Russian officers are even reported to have invited the fishermen to appeal for the protection of the czar. The Norwegian government is not blind to the danger and has erected several strong new fortifications, though even with these it would be exceedingly difficult to defend the frontier successfully. The only hope for Norway is evidently that the powers of Europe, realizing that Russia, with ports and a powerful navy on the Atlantic, would be a formidable and constant danger to peace, would intervene and put an end to her plans.

HUNTING FOR ABUTMENTS OF THE OLD BEAVER CANAL

NEW CASTLE, PA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—The United States Steel Corporation is making deep excavations along the banks of the Neshannock river, near the Mill street bridge, in a hunt for abutments placed a half a century ago along the old Beaver canal. The abutments are needed as evidence in court against Councilman Robert W. Whitlay, who is fighting the corporation for the title to a valuable triangular strip of land. Whitlay and the heirs of the late Capt. G. H. P. Green were in possession of the land for 30 years before the corporation laid claim to it last spring, and removed a small frame store building off at night, then building a stout timber barricade. The abutments formed the division line, marking the end of the steel company's property.

Threatened With Tar and Feathers.

BEAVER, PA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Whitecaps have appeared in West Bridgewater. A notice threatening to tar and feather Henry Couplin was found tacked on the door of his basement in Bridge street yesterday. The writing was in a business hand without a misspelled word. Couplin is a painter, 35 years old, and has lived in West Bridgewater but three weeks.

Minister's Home Robbed.

LATROBE, PA., Aug. 16.—(Special.)—The residence of the Rev. Mr. Allshouse, pastor of the Methodist church of Bradenville, was robbed last night of $50, provisions and clothing. Thieves broke open the cellar door and went through the house undisturbed by the family, all of whom were asleep. The burglars overlooked $200 in the pastor's desk.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT CHAUTAUQUA

Baccalaureate Sunday of the C. L. S. C. Fittingly Celebrated.

SERMON BY DR. H. L. WILLETT

Chicago Divine Dwells Upon the Limitations of Man and Draws Lesson Therefrom—Although in Prison Hope Still Shines Brightly.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 16.—This is the baccalaureate Sunday of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific circle and the class of 1904 was an unusually large one. For several days the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific circle people have been gathering in for this occasion and the other exercises of this week, which is strictly theirs, until the grounds are full of them.

The choir prepared special music for the day and the baccalaureate sermon was preached by Dr. H. L. Willett of Chicago. The text was "Return you to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope."

Dr. Willett said that man was a prisoner in this life; that he cannot do as he would and there are times when he seems to be creature of circumstances. He must live in a narrow and far more limited sphere than he would desire, and is bound by forces over which he has no control.

From a physical standpoint he is weak and helpless. The forces of nature sweep away his lands and homes and shake down his buildings. He is a prisoner, too, in the intellectual life. There are books that he would write, enterprises he would move, reforms that he would start, and none of these are done because of his limitations. Even our most learned men in their last days say, "We have made but a beginning."

In things spiritual our confines are even more limited. How little we know of God, of the problem of sin, of the atonement. In view of all this it would seem that the fatalist had a great array of truth on his side, and it is wonderful how the doctrine of irresponsibility and fatalism is spreading. Its teachers and literature are to be found everywhere, telling men that they have no power to choose between right and wrong, and they cannot be other than they are. The growth of this doctrine is becoming alarming and is doing much harm among our young people.

This prisonhood is not hopeless. There are compensating circumstances which make man master of the situation and give him a discipline of character that he never could have if he lived his life freely and fully as he wished. There are many things we do not know, but we do know enough of the great Christian truth to make our lives pure and sweet, to enable us to know ourselves and Him.

PRESIDENT WISHES ROOT TO SUCCEED HIM

Retirement of Secretary of War Part of Plan to Put Him in White House.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 16.—"President Roosevelt plans to force the nomination of Elihu Root for governor and make him his successor in the White House in 1908."

This declaration was made today by a Republican member of congress, who is usually an authority on Roosevelt's political schemes, and he insists that it's a part of the program outlined by the president when he determined to throw his influence for the re-nomination of Low for mayor of New York and announced the event which was followed by the news that Mr. Root is to resign as secretary of war.

"I know nothing definite about Root being made the political legatee of Roosevelt for the presidency," said Congressman James W. Wadsworth of Livingston here today. "But in Washington there has been a strong suspicion for a long time that Roosevelt has desired that Root shall be the candidate for governor next year and that Root's retirement from the cabinet was decided upon with that purpose in view. How this will suit Senator Platt and Gov. Odell I do not know. Root would make a splendid candidate for governor in my judgment and he would help Roosevelt to carry this state next year."

Senator Platt has picked his man to prevent the return of Lucius N. Littauer to congress from this district. He is John K. Stewart of Montgomery, who served that section in the lower house before his and Littauer's and Louis W. Emerson's districts were consolidated. Platt will use as a part of his ammunition the government glove scandal in which Littauer is implicated.

NEWPORT ENTERTAINS HIS GRACE OF ROXBURGH

Mrs. Goelet Details Three Liveried Flunkies to Minister to the Duke's Comfort.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 16.—Today was the busiest Sunday since the season began and tonight, especially for Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt, who are stopping with Mrs. Ogden Goelet, where the duke of Roxburgh is also a guest. The party went to Trinity church this morning, where there was an unusually large congregation, and the collection the largest in the history of the old edifice.

Since Mrs. Goelet arrived at Ochre court 10 additional servants in Goelet liveries are stationed there, three being at the disposal of the duke alone. After luncheon the duke, with Miss Goelet, went for a drive about the avenue and for the first time he saw the Ocean drive and some of the crowds and villas which Miss Goelet explained in detail and their owners.

A stop was made at the Country club and here the duke paid a high compliment to the links and the delightful situation. He could not understand why so little golf was played in Newport with such magnificent links. This evening Mrs. Goelet gave a large dinner for the duke at which some 35 guests were present.

ANNAPOLIS EXAMINATIONS DISPLEASE CONGRESSMEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(Special.)—Secretary Moody will urge the adoption by congress of the recommendation of the board of visitors that admission to the naval academy be both upon certificates from approved schools and examination. There has been widespread dissatisfaction among senators and congressmen at the character of the entrance examination in recent years. It is argued that coaching at one of the schools preparatory to Annapolis is the safest method to insure passage of these examinations, because of the "catch" questions asked.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYE COMMITS SELF MURDER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Stephen E. Hall of Aurora, Ill., a protege of Senator Albert J. Hopkins, killed himself in his room here today. Hall had suffered great pain, due to some stomach trouble. He was a clerk in the department of commerce and labor. The only known relative of Hall is M. B. Downer, manager of the Union Publishing Company of Chicago.

Identified Stolen Goods.

Mrs. M. H. Law of Home avenue, Bellevue, called at Allegheny Central station yesterday afternoon and identified a lot of clothing and dress goods, alleged to have been stolen from her by two colored domestics, Sarah Jones and Nana Raper. The girls will be given a hearing this morning before Justice Harry Robison of Bellevue.

CARNEGIE STARTS INQUIRY BUREAU

Its Duties Are to Investigate Condition of Claimants For Charity.

BENEFACTIONS KEPT SECRET

Steel King Has Representatives in London, Manchester, Glasgow and Edinburgh to Look After the Widow and the Orphan Who Are Friendless.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Andrew Carnegie's philanthropic activity is not entirely confined to the endowment of universities and the building of free libraries. His private charity has not so far become a matter of public interest, because he insists upon a promise from those he helps to keep their relations with him a secret.

For some time past he has been inundated with applications from all classes and conditions of people who represented themselves to be on the verge of starvation, but on making his usual careful inquiries he discovered, of course, that many of the applicants were frauds. He has now instructed his secretary that applications from needy widows and orphans only are to command his attention in the future. Mr. Carnegie has gone to a great amount of trouble in perfecting a scheme for assisting such people. It was suggested to him that a number of persons interested in charitable institutions would be useful to him in making the necessary inquiries, so that his charity might not run into the wrong channels.

"No," said Carnegie, "I can manage my own charity."

FOREIGN LABOR CAUSES DISORDER IN GERMANY

Riots Result From Attempt to Use Imported Italians to Break a Strike.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—There are grave fears that unless something is done to put an end to the importation of Italian laborers into Germany, where they antagonize German labor unions, this country will be in danger of a social revolution.

The latest outbreaks of ill feeling against Italians are reported from Kassel, where there for some time has been a strike in the building trades. Some of the employers secretly imported several hundred Italians and when these arrived yesterday it came to a serious clash between the authorities and the strikers, who have the support of public opinion. A crowd numbering many thousands gathered around the houses where the Italians had been quartered and tried to break down the barricaded doors. The entire police force was called out and charged the crowd with drawn swords, but were met with a determined resistance, and only when a regiment of soldiers were seen approaching did the crowd disperse, leaving many wounded in the street. Several hundred were arrested.

The authorities expect another outbreak should the Italians attempt to go to work tomorrow morning, and, though a strong military force is held in readiness, they advise the employers to send the Italians back, as the feeling against them is exceedingly strong, not only among the strikers but also among the citizens in general. Similar outbreaks have occurred all over Germany and the "coolie" question, as it is called, will undoubtedly be taken up by the Socialist party in the coming session of the reichstag.

ENGLAND MAY RAISE COTTON IN COLONIES

High Prices Spur Britons to Take Renewed Interest in Production.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The scarcity and high prices of cotton this year, which has forced many English mills to close down and caused great suffering among thousands who have thus been made idle, has spurred the government to take renewed interest in the problem of raising cotton in English colonies, and it is proposed to give government support to colonists who may try to raise cotton.

According to the latest reports British Guiana has splendid conditions for the production of the staple. Sir Daniel Morris, imperial commissioner of agriculture, in his official report on his recent visit to British Guiana states in regard to cotton cultivation that if the vast stretches of land along the seaboard, extending from the Demera river to the Berbice river, could be adequately drained, there is no reason why cotton should not again be adequately grown in the colony, and besides opening a new source of supply for British manufacturers give employment to a large portion of the population that refuses to work on the sugar plantations. The report concludes:

"The main factor on which the agricultural future of British Guiana depends is drainage. The question of drainage is paramount. No agricultural development can take place on the coast lines at all events, without an elaborate system of drainage. The cost would be enormous, but, under the present circumstances, when cotton is scarce at any price, it would be justified and in a few years bring handsome returns."

GERMAN STUDENTS REFUSE RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(Special Cable.)—At the annual meeting of the German Students' association, representing every university in Germany, now in session at Frankenhausen, Sewartzburg Rudolphstadt, it has been decided that no German student should accept a Cecil Rhodes scholarship at Oxford. Last year the universities of Goettingen and Heidelberg came out officially against the project, and at this meeting at Frankenhausen, the question was finally settled without a single argument being heard in favor of it.

Raid in Allegheny City.

Allegheny police raided the house of Annie Jones, at No. 113 Scott street early yesterday morning. The proprietor, three girls and five male visitors were arrested. The proprietor was fined $25 and costs, the visitors $5 and costs each, and the girls were discharged.

ALEXANDER'S SAD FATE WRUNG CHILDISH TEARS

Pathetic Tale Told by Keepers at the Zoo Enchained Youngsters' Wistful Attention—Martha Washington Blinks Sorrowfully at It.

There were very few dry eyes among the children at the Highland park zoological garden yesterday, when the keepers were telling the story of the death of Alexander Hamilton, the cunning pet of the zoo. Before the cage of Martha Washington, the famous lioness, the children stood row upon row, and as they looked at her pityingly, Martha blinked sorrowfully, too.

Alexander Hamilton was Martha's favorite son, for although she had triplets a few months ago, little Aleck inherited the affection which the mother bore toward Thomas Jefferson Burr, who departed this life 17 days ago, from distemper. The third son is still alive, and Martha, who hitherto had deemed him unworthy of maternal solicitude, he was such an ugly little runt, held him between her paws all yesterday afternoon and tried to make up for her neglect.

Alexander Hamilton went to sleep last Tuesday by his mother's side. A bumble bee alighted on him and Martha, apparently realizing that to kill the bee with her paw would mean death to Aleck, rolled over on the insect, and unwittingly crushed the life out of the cub. She was much distressed and would not permit the keepers to take the dead away until they drove her into the other compartment of the cage.

The crowds at Schenley and Highland parks were greater than for several Sundays past. Among the visitors to the zoo were a good many Poles and Italians, who had evidently come from a distance, attracted by the excursion rates on the railroads. They could not understand the keepers when they were telling about Martha Washington and Alexander, but they understood the antics of the monkeys and spent hours watching them.

Robert Claig of Parker street has presented to the zoo a green tree snake, which was exceedingly lively yesterday and twisted around as if desiring to show the play of the sunlight on his handsome skin.

The shelter houses at the bandstand and race track in Schenley park and one of the houses in Highland park are completed, but will not be open to the public until they have been accepted by the city. Many carriages and buggies were driven in Schenley park yesterday and there were several surreptitious brushes on the race track. The chrysanthemums in the conservatory are growing finely and will be in good shape for the flower show about October 15.

MUSIC DREW THOUSANDS.

Great Crowds Enjoyed the Sunday Programs at the Traction Parks.

Fine weather and good programs attracted thousands to the traction parks yesterday.

Kennywood had the Rocereto band for both concerts. Koster, the aerial acrobat, was there, and he performed some very difficult feats. Mlle. Alicia DeVon sang at both concerts, and her rich voice called forth unstinted praise.

The Third Regiment band, under the direction of John DeBacker, played two highly appreciated concerts at Oakwood yesterday. Most of the music was popular, but there were several well-executed characteristic numbers suggestive of native dances. Miss Hattie North, the comedienne, came in for her share of parise, as did Tobiat & Sregor, character comedians.

At Calhoun the Braddock Library band, under the direction of W. L. Mayer, and the Blaney Rough Rider band, from the "Across the Pacific" company, gave the concerts jointly. The Barry & Woodford Trio and the Kiltie Trio, composed of Gorman, Proctor & Gorman, furnished a lot of comedy.

At Southern park the Homestead Library band, under the direction of Edwin B. Dolin, played both concerts. Felardo, "the human musical instrument," was one of the special features. Murphy & Palmer, the comedians, showed that they can give a good Sunday bill as well as make their audiences roar with laughter when on the weekly vaudeville bill. Miss Marie Laurent, the vocalist, sang several songs that were thoroughly appreciated.

ADVISERS WANTED.

Emperor of Germany Looking for Suitable Men to Take Ministers' Places.

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(Special Cable.)—The first meeting of the cabinet after the return of the kaiser is said not to have run off as harmoniously as officially reported yesterday. The kaiser is known to be exceedingly displeased with several of his advisers and scored the minister of the interior, Count von Hammerstein, very unpopular by his extreme tardiness in coming to the help of the sufferers from the flood in Silesia.

Though no sudden changes will take place in the cabinet it is expected to last only till after the large military maneuvers in September, and the kaiser is already looking for successors to Count von Hammerstein, Minister of Education Studt, Minister of Agriculture Gen. Podbelski and Minister of Justice Schoenstedt.

PITTSBURGHERS TO ATTEND.

Arrangements Completed for Reunion of Society of the Roundheads.

A number of Pittsburghers will attend the thirty-eighth annual reunion of the Society of the Roundheads of the One Hundredth regiment, Pennsylvania veteran volunteers, which will be held at Wampum, Pa., on Wednesday of this week. The railroads running from here have agreed to sell tickets at the rate of one fare for the round trip on August 19, good to return until August 20.

The arrangements here are in charge of John H. Stevenson, the assistant secretary. A camp fire is to be held in the evening, to which comrades of other commands have been invited. The officers of the society are: President, H. Ira Cunningham, Wampum; vice presidents, Henry Guy Chewton and William Smiley, Ellwood; secretary, James C. Stevenson, New Castle; treasurer, H. I. Cunningham, Wampum, and chaplain, the Rev. Alvin M. Reed, Arlington, Kan.

KNEW HE WAS IN WRONG AFTER BEING SHOT

Negro Burglar Explains His Presence at Night in Another Man's House.

"I didn't want to rob no one. I was so awful drunk I didn't know where I was until some one started to pump lead into my shin. Then I knew I had got in wrong and sobered up."

This is the way Granville Hartnett explained his presence in the home of Patrick McGrogan, Walker's Mills, at an unusually early hour yesterday morning. Hartnett received a severe beating, was shot in the leg and is now in jail awaiting trial for burglary.

McGrogan leaves his front door open on Saturday nights, so that his sons, who work until early in the morning, can get in, without disturbing anyone. The boys had all entered Saturday night, but the last one failed to lock the door.

Hartnett, who is a miner at the Hawk's Nest mine, must have known the habits of the family, as he went to the front of the house and went in. He had not been in the house very long until he was discovered by one of the family, who awoke the rest.

The father and sons attacked the negro, one of them striking him a hard blow on the left temple, making a bad flesh wound. He was also shot in the right leg, a little below the knee. He was then held until Constable Eli Wilkenson was called, when he was placed under arrest.

Information was made against the negro before Justice of the Peace Thomas Breman by Patrick McGrogan. After having his wounds dressed, Hartnett was taken to the Allegheny county jail.
